Thousands greet Nixon in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of Russians standing in silence but waving Soviet and American flags greeted President Nixon in Moscow on Thursday for the start of his nuclear summit conference with Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The first session with the Communist party general secretary got under way in the Kremlin after an unexplained 90-minute delay.

Crowds estimated by newsmen to number about 10,000 had formed in groups on Nixon's route along a broad avenue from the airport to the Kremlin. But others who tried to join them in some areas were shunted down side streets by police shouting through bullhorns, "Not allowed! Not allowed!" This was believed to be an effort by officials to keep down the size of the crowds.

Unlike Nixon's previous visit to Moscow, the Soviet press had given wide publicity to the President's coming for his third round of summit talks with Brezhnev.

The crowd turnout was larger than when Nixon first came as president two years ago. Many carried tiny paper flags given them beforehand.

Nixon's first session with Brezhnev had been set for 5 p.m., 10 a.m., EDT. Newsmen on hand in the Kremlin for the session were suddenly put on a bus and driven away without explanation.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren indicated that no difficulties had arisen.

Nixon was greeted by Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at the VIP Vnukovo Airport which was decked out with Soviet and American flags. Brezhnev did not come to the airport two years ago to greet Nixon.

The President hoped his visit would produce a partial ban on underground nuclear weapons tests and a slowdown on nuclear arms development by the two superpowers.

The President, with Mrs. Nixon on his right, smiled and waved as he walked down the ramp of the blue and white presidential jet under bright, sunny skies. A crowd of about 400 persons was at the airport to greet Nixon.

Nixon first reviewed an honor guard, which hailed him with the cheer, "We wish you health." He then heard a military band play the Soviet and American national anthems. Then he and his wife shook hands with some persons in the crowd, who were waving small American and Soviet flags.

Brezhnev and Nixon smiled frequently and chatted with each other as they walked through the crowd, and Nixon waved several times to the well-wishers, who included a contingent from the American Embassy.

Nixon then watched a brief military parade, headed into the airport lounge and prepared to motor into the city.

At the President's first Moscow summit, in May 1972, the Soviets accorded Nixon a cooly correct welcome and

Local cotton growers discuss crop's future

A group of area cotton growers and representatives from Cotton Inc. exchanged views Wednesday at the Ramada Inn on what happens to investments in the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by cotton producers throughout America. The exchange took place at an agriculture forum organized by A. L. "Bud" Story of Wolf Island, area delegate to the National Cotton Council.

Dr. George A. Slater, vice president for agriculture research at Cotton Inc. headquarters in New York, was one of four company officials who spoke to the forum. He reviewed a recent experiment to eradicate the boll weevil in southern Mississippi, pointing out that producers across the nation contributed over $1 million to the experiment through Cotton Inc.

Slater said several techniques perfected in the experiment can be used by farmers now to surpress weevil populations and decrease cotton losses, including trap crops, sex-lure traps, reproduction diapause insecticide applications and early stalk destruction.

Slater also told producers that a major breakthrough has occurred in a project on the tobacco budworm.

"In a cooperative project with the United States Department of Agriculture, we have identified and isolated the sex pheromone of the budworm. Now we are working to manufacture a chemical duplication of the pheromone," Slater said.

According to Slater, if the air in cotton fields was saturated with the pheromone, or odor, it would desrupt communication between males and females, preventing mating and population growth.

Slater also discussed short season cotton systems, cotton rick compactor, automatic gin feeder and the module builder. He said all the new techniques are aimed to increase profits for growers and ginners.

"Cotton can be used effectively in the energy crisis," Slater told the group.

He said protein extracted from cotton seed may be ground into flour and used as a meat extender or in combination with wheat flour in baked products.

"Gin trash from one bale of cotton can be used as fuel to dry one and one half bales," according to Slater.

David Cox, vice president for economic research and development at Raleigh, N.C., explained the company's stategy of treating cotton as an agro-industrial product, not a farm commodity. He said growers should be more concerned with profit than price.

Cox explained profit as "the highest price a producer can get under stable market conditions of supply and demand."

"Our objective has been to push fiber through the mills and, with effective advertising and merchandising programs, establish consumer pull," Cox said.

Donald S. Kleckner, vice president for marketing services, told the group, "If we want to keep cotton competitive in the marketplaces of the world, we must grow."

Kleckner pointed out that one manufacturer of synthetic fibers spends 10 times as much on research as Cotton Inc.

He said a handful of synthetic fiber makers have ruled the marketplace in recent years.

Kleckner distributed samples of a 60 per cent cotton, 40 per cent polyester fabric which was to be introduced Wednesday night to a group of clothing manufacturers and members of the press in New York City. The fabric will appear on the retail market next February and should help change cotton's position in the fabric market, according to Kleckner.

Brian W. Jones of Cotton Inc.'s research center in Raleigh reported that researchers have developed a flame retardant for cotton apparel that will pass government standards.

Bob Matthews of Sikeston initiated discussion between company officials and the cotton producers. He accused the officials of "poor communication to the growers and ginners."

The producers decided a more direct educational approach should be taken by the company to keep them informed.

End could be near for traditional 4th

This may be the last Fourth of July with a big bang, the last chance for those who love loud noises to explode their whiz bangs, rat chasers and lady fingers.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission will soon hold public hearings on firecrackers, then probably ban them and establish new safety standards for other fireworks, such as sparklers, Roman candles and sky rockets.

The commission has previously banned the sale of firecrackers to the public. The ban was scheduled to go into effect July 12. But intensive lobbying by the industry resulted in a lifting of the ban for one more Fourth.

While fireworks are still legal in the state, their sale and use is illegal in Sikeston. However, anyone who wants fireworks should have no trouble finding them, as several fireworks stands are located just outside the city limits. The only fireworks not legal in Missouri are cherry bombs, M 80's and booby trap burglar alarms.

The only legal fireworks in Sikeston, according to Police Chief Leon Culp, are those used in supervised displays.

Anyone caught with fireworks will be prosecuted, Culp said, with juveniles being sent to juvenile court and adults to city court.

Paula Gilliland, Route Two, is spending her first, and possibly last, year selling fireworks in a tent on Highway 62 East.

"If people would be more careful, it (the ban) wouldn't have to happen," she said.

All the fireworks she sells have the required label stating they should be used outdoors under adult supervision.

Some people are aware of the proposed ban and seem to be stocking up, she said. One person bought $50 worth of firecrackers in one day, and the day before he bought $15 worth, she said.

Most people don't seem to be aware of the proposed ban, she added and sales have been slow since Monday when the stand opened. Business has picked up, however, as the Fourth gets closer, she said.

What does she think the Fourth would be like without firecrackers? "Not much of one, just another day," she said.

Russell De Vore operates a stand on Highway 60 on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River bridge. He recently told the Cairo, Ill., newspaper that firecrackers were not as dangerous as bicycles, roller skates or BB guns.

De Vore sells mostly to out- of- state residents who cross the river to buy their fireworks because Illinois bans the sale and use of fireworks. He says he also sells to a large number of Michigan residents.

"You can drop a fork on your foot while eating Mom's apple pie and get hurt," he said.

"The Fourth of July is just not the Fourth without fireworks," he added.

'Fireworks for sale'

Paula Gilliland, Route Two, looks over part of her selection of fireworks. This could be the last year explosive fireworks are available to the public. The federal government is proposing to ban their sale and use.

Postmaster says service unchanged

Although the number of dispatches of incoming and outgoing mail to post offices located within the Sikeston sectional center facility have been reduced, mail service has not changed, according to Don Pasaka, postmaster of the Sikeston facility.

Only the number of dispatches to other towns within the section have changed, Pasaka said, while the number of dispatches of incoming and outgoing mail to and from the Sikeston post office from outside the section remain the same.

The reason for the reduction is the energy crisis, Pasaka explained. By consolidating some star routes and discontinuing multiple trip runs to cities, much fuel and time can be saved with no decrease in the mail service most customers are receiving.

The Sikeston sectional center facility services towns in the Bootheel from Sikeston south.

Each town serviced by the sectional center facility is now receiving only one dispatch of incoming mail and one dispatch of outgoing mail daily. In the past some of these town have received more dispatches. The same mail service standards for customers have been maintained despite the reduction, Pasaka stressed.

He explained that in the past, mail left post offices more than once during the day, but did not leave the Sikeston office until 8:30 or 9 p.m., depending on which direction it was moving. Mail arriving in Sikeston during the day was accumulated and processed for the evening dispatch.

Now mail leaves for Sikeston one time, but is processed and sent out on the same shipment as in the past. Thus, Pasaka explained, there is no change in the mail service for those towns in which shipments have been reduced.

Mail going to the various post offices is also being handled on a once- a-day basis because of the energy crunch. Mail is dispatched in the morning to these areas, and the afternoon trips have been discontinued.

He explained that only a small amount of mail was normally handled on the afternoon runs in the past any way, so the effect on postal customers is not really that great.

People who will notice the change are post office boxholders in towns close to the Sikeston facility. In the past, mail received in early afternoon at these offices

Agriculture chemicals stolen

PORTAGEVILLE — A large quantity of farm chemicals valued at $8,309.42 were stolen Wednesday night in a break-in at Agrico Chemical Co. on Highway 61 North.

According to a New Madrid County sheriff's deputy, who investigated with the highway patrol, the thieves entered the metal building by cutting a hole with tin snippers.

The break-in and theft was discovered by Nelda Kimes, the manager, when she reported to work about 8 a.m. today.

Woman stabbed during robbery

WAPPAPELLO — Mrs. Dorothy Whelan, 48, is listed in satisfactory condition today at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff where she was taken after she was stabbed by a burglar early today at Venture Inn, a Route Two tavern.

The highway patrol said it received a report that a man described as tall, slender, and wearing western boots had entered an upstairs window of the tavern at 4:40 a.m. and took an undetermined amount of cash.

He then attacked Mrs. Whelan, stabbing her in the left side of the chest with an ice pick. The man is believed to have headed south on Route T but his mode of travel is unknown.

The incident is being investigated by the Butler County sheriff's department and the highway patrol.

AND NOW,
LIQUOR LIB!

Along with everything else they established in 1787, the Founding Fathers made a "common market" out of the United States. The "Commerce Clause" was intentionally inserted into the Constitution to remove trade barriers between the states, which had been one of the principal grievances of the former colonies.

Prior to Prohibition, the Supreme Court ruled that intoxicating liquor was a legitimate subject of commerce, "as much so as cabbages and candlesticks." Since the repeal of Prohibition in 1933, however, court opinion has held that the 21st Amendment (Repeal) overrides all other constitutional provisions and permits individual states complete latitude in the area of liquor control, including the right to discriminate against wine produced in another state.

The result has been a pattern of "Balkinization" in state liquor laws, especially in regard to wines.

A bill currently before Congress — H.R. 2096— would give alcoholic beverages the protection they were once guaranteed under the Constitution. The bill has been passed by a substantial majority in the House of Representatives and is now awaiting action in the Senate.

The only right that would be denied to an individual state would be the "right" to discriminate the wines of any one are in favor of the wines from any other area. It could not force a retailer, whether a state- operated store or a private licensee, to buy or to refrain from buying any wines offered for sale by suppliers, nor would it interfere with a state's adoption of local option laws.

H. R. 2096 would, in short, remove a shadow that has hovered over the legal status of alcoholic beverages for some 40 years.

A USE FOR
USED STATIONS

Old gas stations never fade away. They just die.

Abandoned stations are a growing urban blight. (They're not so pretty in the country, either, but there the landscape tends to swallow them up.)

Some 10,000 service stations went out of business in 1973, the American Petroleum Institute reports, and the gasoline crisis was just getting started then. Thousands more will probably close this year, even with improving gasoline supplies.

What to do with all these properties? Fortunately, many of them are in very advantageous locations, usually on a busy corner right across from two or three other stations.

Realtor magazine recently asked its readers to send in suggestions for new uses for gas stations. Some it received:

Dry cleaning substation, office, auto repair shop, bus terminal, monument sales, parking lot, beauty shop, small stores or shops, fast food service, open-air market, drive-in bank, laundromat, mobile homes sales, used car lot, convenience food market.

None of these ideas exactly grabs one, does it?

MAYBE IT
WAS BETTER

Forty years ago, the March, 1932, issue of Nation's Business discussed the state of the Great Depression. Reportedly, there were a few signs of a business pickup. There was no concern about inflation. The financial integrity of government was unquestioned and President Hoover reinforced the importance of this integrity when he remarked, "We cannot squander ourselves into prosperity. The people will, of course, provide against distress, but the purpose of the nation must be to restore employment by economic recovery."

Even in this bleak period, Nation's Business points out, there were success stories. It told of a thriving variety chain store organization whose chairman observed that in the previous two depression years his firm ad increased its earnings, and it also increased the number of its stores by 50 percent. A good part of the reason, he explained, was "greater consideration for the welfare of the consumers." His firm, like others in the mass distribution field, "...made a zealous effort to pass on in price reductions any savings of costs gained through volume buying or other means."

In 1932, these were the rules for recovery from depression. No one has proven that the new way of uncontrolled deficit spending, inflation and government administered prices and wages is better. The end result may be less humane in terms of economic hardship than the stern disciplines that were accepted as a matter of course in the pre- 1932 era.

NOBODY GETS ANYTHING
FOR NOTHING

The government's Price Commisstion, in establishing guidelines for utility rate regulation,conceded the immutability of a few hard facts. The new guidelines will allow "many rate increases, some of them substantial." The rate increase, the Commission chairman said, will be needed to "supply continuing adequate, safe and pollution-free services." He also warned that consumers must realize that "when you demand service you must pay for it," and "nobody gets anything for nothing." Rate increases, he indicated, must be sufficient to attract capital for needed exapnsion in the utility industry.

Whether these precepts will be adhered to remains to be seen. Undoubtedly, efforts to drive down the rates of utility companies will furnish popular ammunition for those seeking to curry favor with voters this election year. However, if consumers and voters can but keep in mind that "nobody gets anything for nothing", they should be able to discern the difference between demagoguery and truth. In the years to come, the ability to descern that difference will determine the fate of our energy-based society and of the environmental programs to which the utility industry has committed itself.

The investor-owned, publicly-regulated electric light and power industry has a record of technological advances and declining rates that, over the past half century, have made our nation the envy of the world from the energy standpoint. Electricity has been and still is about the smalles item in the family budget-- considering the manifold services it renders. The electric industry must continue to render thses services--without which the modern home or place of business would be untenable. At the same time, the industry must be permitted to earn the money required to meet its obligations to the power consuming public and to millions of American investors.

NEW BANDITS OF THE OLD WEST

There's a not more hustling than rustling going in the modern West,'podner.

The hustler wouldn't dream os stealing somebody's steer; he'd never knock you down on the street and lift your wallet. But each year he talks thousands of naive/ greedy/soft- hearted (or headed) people out of millions of their hardearned dollars by selling them subdivided lot in the middle of nowhere, along with a dream of making a nice buck when the land is developed "in a few years."

In "The Land Hustler," a recent series of articles distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn., author Anthony Wolff noted that the federal Office of Interstate Land Sales Regulation (OILSR), in order to protect consumers from deceptive salesmen, now requires developers to provide buyers with a property report describing the land.

Unfortunately, while it does give some relevant information, "with the way most subdivision lots are sold under pressure by salesmen trained in sleight-of-mouth, the report is nxt to useless," says Wolfff.

It is a forbidding document dealing with encumbrances, eeasements and other technical matters difficult to understand. And though the OILSR points out that "this report is not a recommendation or endorsement of the offering," it may actually lend respectability to the fast-talking salesman, who can quite truthfully say that he is regulated by the government.

The way things are now is bad enough, but at least the land in question remains ecologically undisturbed. There's another way in which the government, in an attempt to insure that the land promoters live up the their promises, may be working against the best interests of the public.

Within eight years after offering property in a subdivision for sale, the seller must provide access to the subdivision by road and also rough in the subdivision streets by bulldozer.

Not only is the latter requirement relatively simple and inexpensive, it will great selling point to use with future "investors." "Look," the hustler can say, "We're already putting in the streets."

Thousands of years from now archeologists probably will puzzle over these strange markings in the middle of arid areas. What earthly reason, they will wonder, did the ancients have for making them? Could they possibly have been landing strips for gods from outer space?

JOBS AND TECHNOLOGY

The direct relationship between high technology and American jobs and economic well-bing is strikingly demonstrated in a news bureau release from a foreign airline. The airline has placed a several million dollar order with a U.S. radio company for "... a tele-communications computer network to integrate major portions of the airline's worldwide communications systems." The U.S. electronics firm is based in Texas. The components of the system it is providing to the foreign airline will be installed in Copenhagen, Aslo and Stockholm.

It has been said repeatedly that high technology as exemplified in the U.S. space program is fundamental to the ability of the U.S. to maintain a position of leadership in important international trade areas. The fact that a major overseas airline finds it is "good business" to rely on a U.S. built telecommunications computer network for "... expansion requirements well into the 1980's." is a concrete manifestation of why the U.S. must maintain a leadership role in high technology.

WEAKENING THE
FREE PRESS

An excellent example of the inherent inequity of government controls over the marketplace can be seen in the publishing business. Magazine and newspaper publishers are subject to Phase II guidelines but not the Postal Service which is free to raise postage rates to any level it deems necessary. In the second-class category, postal rates are slated to increase about 150 percent over five years. Third-class postal rate increases are following a similar trend. The net result of all this is that there is likely to be a gradual drying up of the flow of news and information upon which the public depends to arrive at fair and resonable conclusions on important issues of the day.

If publications can be put out of business through postal rate increases, the question of censorship of the press becomes academic. There will be very little press to censor and the written word as an element of the right of free speech will steadily diminish in importance as insolvency thins the ranks of America's thousands of daily and weekly newpapers as well as the nations magazines.

SCANDALS
IN GOVERNMENT

Scandals continue to be the order of the day in Washington as well as in some capitals overseas. For exactly two years, U.S. citizens have been reading about Watergate and related events and wondering how and when it will all end. The entire business should be kept in perspective. The scandals will be cleared up and the guilty punished. Whatever may be wrong in Washington, the system will purge itself and the system shall survive. The system is stronger than men. This has been proved many times.

It is not the purpose here to try to fix blame on individuals but rather to point out that the system of checks and balances is fully at work. It may seem that the three major components of the federal government work slowly at times, but like the mills of God, they grind surely. The judiciary is bringing into the dock those suspected of crimes and sentences are being meted out upon conviction. The House of Representatives continues its work in the impeachment field. While he obviously is working under a heavy load, the President continues to set a quick pace in foreign affairs.

All of this points up the wisdom of those who wrote the Constitution and the amendments. That document is as valid today as it was when it was written. Advances in science and all fields of human endeavor do not change its expressed formula for good government. HLH

Inside Labor

Labor's Own Transcript: Auto Union Saga -- From Bankruptcy to Riches -- With Money to Give Away

WASHINGTON -- Since transcripts are in season I offer one from which no expletives are deleted. At one point (tapes available) the speaker says:

"In my mind he is guilty as hell. Let's go on with the impeachment and get rid of this bastard."

The reference is to Dick Nixon. The speaker is one of the nation's low- profiled, but nonetheless powerful labor chiefs, 60- year- old Emil Mazey, second in command of the giant United Auto Workers (UAW). Scene: the virtually unreported UAW 24th constitutional convention in Los Angeles early this month.

Later Mazey, the 1,750 million- member union's Secretary Treasurer, was asked to retract. He said he would if he could substitute the letters "s.o.b."

Mazey is tough. His references to President Nixon are mild compared with his torrid bon mots reserved for AFL-CIO President George Meany. But what's fascinating about "Emil" (few call him Mr. Mazey) is his avowed Norman Thomas- type militant socialism which hasn't prevented him from skillfully building the UAW into a union with the nation's if not the world's, greatest cache of capitalist dollars.

There's intense significance in this on the national and international political and industrial fronts. With no great labor battles facing it, the UAW may well pile up almost half a billion dollars in fixed assets and cash in banks (instant cash -- certificates and bonds) by the time it meets in convention again in mid- 1977.

Built into it are moneys for political action; for Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers; for other unions' strikers needing immediate cash. The UAW contributed $100,000 to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Farah boycott drive. Chavez has been getting $10,000 a week and told the convention delegates that "without that money we'd be dead today."

And right off, one delegate handed him eight checks for $10,000 each.

Yet the auto union itself was practically bankrupt some three years ago. It had spent $160 million striking General Motors. It was $80 million in debt. But black ink was beautiful for Mazey at the convention.

He reported the UAW now was worth $144.5 million -- mostly in liquid assets. Some $12.3 million was in cash. That was as of April 30. So the figure is higher today.

Of the total figure, the UAW strike fund now runs higher than $90 million. All of it is invested. It keeps piling up though the union appears to be spending about $12 million a month in benefits for local strikes. The going relief rate for a family is $40 a week.

Even at 60, Emil Mazey is a veteran of the early sitdown wars of the '30s. He was the first to sign a union contract with Ford. Back in 1941. And he was the first, I do believe, to sign the first Cost of Living escalator clause in the industry -- with General Motors.

No insinuations meant here that it was a one- man show. But he was there during the sit-ins. He unleashed the earliest flying squads. He was first with a lot of firsts. With him were the three Reuther brothers. But Walter and Roy have passed away. And the surviving Victor is writing a book and trying to build a Socialist bloc inside the Democratic party.

So to "Emil" has gone the flaming torch -- and the development of more firsts. There appears to be a new one in the creation of something called the Free World Dept. The convention set it up as a regular section of the huge union's infrastructure. It used to be the Free World Fund -- which was financed by the interest on the multi- million- dollar strike fund.

Now the Department will move more solidly on the international front. I see this as the beginning of actual and not just rhetorical international solidarity with the militant and Socialist automotive and metal workers' unions abroad.

"Why did we establish the Free World Fund?" Mazey asked and then answered himself. "We are living in a period of history where we have multinational corporations such as General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, General Electric, International Harvester, Caterpillar, and numerous other companies, and it is important that we have a relationship with the balance of the labor movement in other countries whose members are working for the same corporations that the membership of our union is working for. It is important that we assist them financially to build strong unions ..."

This would help auto unions in their drive for higher wages in other nations. Thus the work becomes a regular function under the new Free World Dept. Times change. Men's psyches and intellectual conditioned reflexes rarely do. So it can be expected that Mazey and the men in the UAW's high command are thinking in terms of global action, worldwide strikes.

It's intriguing to note that among the guests were the leaders of the German, Japanese and Republic of South Africa auto unions.

So I thought I wouldn't let this transcript go by.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round
by Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Allies Fear Summit

WASHINGTON — On his way to Moscow, President Nixon stopped off in Brussels to sign a NATO charter and to smile for the cameras. But behind the show of cordiality, our NATO friends are secretly worried that the President will give more than he will gain at the Moscow summit meeting.

This nagging concern appears in confidential draft reports prepared for the North Atlantic Assembly, which gathered in Washington earlier this month.

The reports reveal that some NATO leaders believe the President has already signed away the Western military advantage. The result "could give the Soviet Union tremendous superiority in numbers of warheads and total 'throw- weight,' " warns one report.

NATO leaders are frankly suspicious of detente. "Detente in Soviet eyes," states another report, "is clearly to achieve recognition by the West of the political situation in Eastern Europe and to secure for the East as much economic and technological benefit as can be gained."

Unfortunately, adds the report, the political softening has been accompanied by a military tightening throughout the Soviet bloc, "Hence the price of detente in the political sphere," the report warns, "is increased readiness and vigilance in the military sphere."

A report on "Atlantic Political Problems" takes blunt notice of the "domestic problems" besetting President Nixon. These, according to the report, "threaten to severely handicap his ... authority."

Declares the confidential document: "Most people would now acknowledge that above all, the President needs a major foreign policy initiative to counter the domestic issues that threaten to engulf him.

"This in turn increases the suspicion of his critics that he will seek a major agreement with the Soviet Union that will have more to do with domestic prestige than the longterm foreign policy interests of the country."

In one report, the latest U. S. doctrine that "nuclear attack would be met by whatever scale of launch the circumstances demanded" is described as a "dangerous development."

This permits "a theoretical approach to nuclear weapons which is out of touch with political reality," the document charges. "It implies the possibility of waging limited nuclear war and the expression of such a possibility is a regressive step."

Not only do NATO leaders look with apprehension on the edge which President Nixon has already given the Soviet Union in missile numbers and payload, but the NATO partners are also concerned about the balance of troops and equipment in Europe.

The Soviet satellites, according to one report, could unleash a force of 925,000 men, 15,500 tanks and 2,800 aircraft "with very little warning." As a defense, the NATO nations have only 770,000 men, 6,00 tanks and 2,700 aircraft.

So despite appearances, our European allies aren't united behind the President as he sits down to bargain with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

MISUSED MILLIONS: The major airlines have stuffed $30 million, collected from passengers to combat hijacking, into their corporate coffers.

The rip-off has been known to federal regulators for a year. But only after goading by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., and a few others has the government stopped the airlines from misusing the antihijacking funds.

The Civil Aeronautics Boards, however, has done nothing to recover the $30 million from the airlines. Here's how the air passengers have been taken, with the connivance of the CAB which is supposed to protect them:

At the height of the hijackings in 1972, the government ordered airports and airlines to take special security precautions. The costs were supposed to be met by socking the passengers 59 cents per ticket.

A 1973 audit,however, showed that the average airline spent only 35 cents per ticket on the new security set-up. The remaining 24 cents were merely added to the profits. At nearly a quarter a ticket, the extra revenue quickly mounted up to$30 million.

The CAB's negligence, however, has been matched by the Federal Aviation Administration's diligence. Although FAA head Alexander Butterfield has admitted in a frank letter to Murphy that "the state of the art has not provided us with metal detectors that are 100 per cent efficient," not a single passenger screened with the metal detectors has committed a hijacking since January 1973.

The FAA also revealed a number of unpublicized incidents where air security held firm:

-- On Aug. 18, 1973, for example, a 16-year-old with 241 rounds of ammunition and an M-1 carbine came to Dulles airport outside Washington with plans to hijack a plane and to demand $300,000 in ransom. Authorities caught him before he could go through with it.

-- On June 4, 1973, a man with a rifle walked into the Portland, Ore., airport and said he was broke, wanted to charge his ticket and would shoot anyone who stopped him. A courageous policeman grabbed the rifle which went off but didn't kill anyone.

As quickly as air security men come up with antihijack and antibomb solutions, the terrorists develop new techniques, as evidenced by classified Justice Department papers.

They tell of interception of passengers with ingenious shotgun-shell devices for detonating bombs, and a homemade bomb made to look like artists' canvasses in which the only solid element that might show up on a metal dector or X-ray are a small battery, a bit of wire and a tiny blasting cap.

Footnote: The airlines point out that they, too, played a prominent role in cutting down on hijacks. As to the $30 million, air industry spokesmen say the original surcharge of 59 cents was, after all, okayed by the CAB. It proved high because of unexpected increases in the number of tickets sold, the spokesmen say.

DINNER
IN PARIS

PARIS — The last time I was in Paris, six years ago, I wrote a column titled "Paris on $500 a Day." The thrust of the piece was that it was still possible to get by in the French capital on $500 if you passed up lunch. My French friends, as well as Americans living in France, thought the article was very funny. But they aren't laughing any more.

When it comes to inflation, the United States is "Mary Poppins" and France is "Deep Throat."

But if you don't worry about prices, you can still have a marvelous time in Paris. What you have to do is forget everything and just decide to live for the moment.

I did this the first night I arrived in town. My wife and I went to a small bistro that boasted two stars in the Guide Michelin.

When the waiter gave us the menu, I thought he made a mistake.

"I beg your pardon, monsieur," I said. "But I believe you have made an error. You gave me the Bank of France's financial report for the month of May."

"No, monsieur, that is the carte pour dinner."

My wife, who always gets nervous when she sees melon selling for more than $15 a portion, whispered to me, "Let's get out of here."

"Don't be silly. We don't get to Paris very often. Let's enjoy it." I studied the menu carefully. "Now we have our choice. We can have the white asparagus or send Joel to college in the fall."

She said: "You mean to say that white asparagus costs as much as Joel's tuition?"

"Yes," I replied, "but they're the large white ones with Hollandaise sauce. You can only get them in the spring."

"But," my wife, always the practical one, said, "Joel had his heart set on going to college."

"Look, Joel can go to school any time. But how often do we come to France and have a chance to order white asparagus? I know if we explain it to him he'll understand."

There were so many dishes to choose from after the first course that I couldn't make up my mind.

Finally I said to my wife, "Remember that house we were going to buy in Martha's Vineyard?"

"The one overlooking the ocean?"

"That's the one." I said. "Let's have the lobster instead."

"You mean you'd rather have lobster than own a house on Martha's Vinyard?"

"But this lobster is cooked in a special cream sauce of chef. It could be years before we have a lobster like this again. We have to think of our old age."

"I don't know," my wife said. "I had my heart set on that house."

"Well, I have my heart set on lobster and, since they're both the same price, I think our stomachs should come first."

The waiter handed me the wine card.

"There's a very nice Pouilly Fuisse," I said.

"Can we afford it?" my wife asked.

"We can if we sell the car when we get back home."

"I need a car," she protested.

"All right," I said. "We'll order an inexpensive Sancerre and cancel the orthodonist's work on Connie's teeth."

My wife was becoming agitated. "If it's costing this much for dinner, how are we going to pay our hotel bill?"

"Will you stop worrying? What do you think the World Bank if for?"

11 accident patients treated

Eleven accident patients were treated and released Wednesday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Treated were: Brock Hesselrode, 3, Sikeston, cut head on window ledge; Jim Burch, 25, Matthews, scratched right forearm in fall; Hattie Stancil, 62, East Prairie, fractured rib in fall; Deanna Gunter, 4, Sikeston, bruised nose in fall on concrete steps; Dale Jones, 25, Sikeston, cut left forearm at work; Cynthia Richards, 10, Matthews, cut left forefinger on knife.

Rolla nurse elected to board

Mrs. Audrey Roberts, R. N. of Rolla, was elected to a three-year term of the Missouri Heart Association Board of Directors at the 25th Annual Meeting June 14, at the Ramada Inn in Columbia.

Serving as Phelps County Heart Fund Chairman intermittently for the past eight years, Mrs. Roberts has helped boost the county's fund raising tally from almost zero to a 1973 total of $3,055. She is Coordinator for Practical Nursing at Waynesville Vocational School and has been Public Health Nurse in Phelps County for a number of years. Mrs. Roberts initiated the county's Heart Sound Screening Program and has led it for two years. She was responsible for Phelps County owning its own PhonoCardioScan machine.

Senator says election reform discriminatory

JEFFERSON CITY — An initiative petition proposal on election reform, being circulated by a group calling itself Missourians for Honest Elections, contains a provision which will make it virtually impossible for any self- employed person to safely run for political office, Sen. Richard M. Webster of Webb City, has charged in a press release mailed from his office here.

Webster said the campaign reform petition is "very similar to legislation which I proposed during the last General Assembly. Although I support the legislation and the proposal generally, it is not possible for the people, when voting on an initiative petition to propose or adopt amendments." For that reason, Webster charged that, if enacted, the petition will place hardships upon the government structure.

Under the proposal, a candidate is defined as an individual who seeks nomination or election to public office, the 32nd district senator said. He added that elsewhere in the proposed law, a public office is defined as any elective office, including such positions as school board, county offices, city council and boards of trustees of special districts, as well as statewide elective offices and positions in the Missouri Legislature.

The initiative petition proposal, Webster noted, states that each candidate shall set forth "a specific listing of the source, by name and address of any gifts, salaries, fees or other income, which for a 12- month period preceding the filing date individually or in the aggregate exceeds $500, which has been paid on behalf of or for services rendered by the candidate to any sole proprietorship, partnership or corporation in which the candidate or candidate's spouse holds an interest of 10 per cent or more."

Webster said the language was designed to require lawyers who became candidates to disclose the names of principal clients. But, he charged, the proposal "goes a good deal further."

He explained that a farmer who sold a brood cow with a calf at side would have to list the name of the purchaser together with the price of the cow and calf and the amount which was paid. The same thing would pertain to any other agricultural commodities, Webster stated.

The senator charged that the same general restrictions would require a real estate man to publish all commissions he had received from the sale of houses and a doctor to publish all fees received from a patient.

He added that a grocery store proprietor could not be a candidate for office under the proposal unless he obtained the name and address of each of his customers. If they purchased more than $500 worth of groceries during the year, their names would have to be published at the time the grocer filed for a city, county or state office.

"The most interesting situation would exist in the case of a psychiatrist who might seek some non-paying public office as a matter of public service," Webster stated. "If he was willing to offer himself for election as a member of a city council, school board or board of trustees, it would be necessary for him to list the names of all persons to whom he had administered psychiatric treatment."

"It becomes apparent," Webster noted, "that a merchant, real estate man, an insurance broker, a doctor, dentist or any other person who is engaged in the process of making a living, will face a severe hardship and a genuine ethical problem, if he seeks public office. This is the case even if that public office pays no salary and is considered strictly a public service."

Webster said that the problem with the initiative petition exists in all matters which it hopes to submit for a vote of the people. The public will see a one paragraph explanation of the proposal which is being sold as an election reform measure, the senator said. If approved, he added, a massive piece of legislation will be adopted which "repeals 20 or our present statutes and enacts 20 new ones.

"The entire bill consists of eight pages of the finest of fine print single spaced," Webster charged. "Unfortunately not one out of 1,000 people who are being asked to sign the petitions will have an opportunity to read the entire proposal."

Webster concluded by charging that the petition was drafted hurriedly after the close of the legislative session. "Most of the bad laws which find their way into the statutes of our state are the result of hurriedly drafted legislation. The proposal contained in the initiative petition is no exception," Webster said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Four major choral works by Mozart and Haydn will highlight Lincoln Center's eighth Mostly Mozart Festival, which will be extended to five weeks for the first time this summer.

Sponsored again this year by the Herman Goldman Foundation, the Mostly Mozart Festival will present 30 concerts nightly except Sundays at Avery Fisher Hall from July 22 through Aug. 24.

There will also be 10 special preconcert recitals open to ticket holders at no extra charge.

The music of Mozart will dominate the program as always but works by Bach, Haydn and Schubert will also be heard.

Firemen called to weed fire

Firemen were called to a weed fire in a field along Malcolm Street at 8:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Firemen said the fire apparently was started either by a match or by fireworks.

Only a small area of the field burned.

The Death-Watch Beetle gets its name from the supposition that its clicking sound presaged a death!

Professional says funeral arrangements up to surviving

Dear Ann Landers: I am a funeral director who disagrees with "Edith in Nebraska." First of all, embalming, which she calleds "barbaric," is for sanitation purposes as well as for temporary preservation. Second, the viewing of the deceased especially for members of the family, serves a vital psychological need and helps them accept the finality of death. Finally, the funeral services is for the living, not the dead. I believe the music, sermon and all decisions connected with the funeral should be made by those who are making the arrangements, and not by the one who has passed on.

The individual's wishes and preferences can, of course, be discussed with the family before death occurs, but if the family disagrees, the wishes of those left behind should take precedence, since they are the ones who are affected. --A Professional Opinion.

Dear P.O.: I hate to dispute "a Professional," but in MY opinion each of us should have the right to decide what we want done with our remains. It's the last thing a family can do for a loved one.

Dear Ann Landers: Can Our Gal Sunday behave herself in that little mining town in Colorado without England's richest, most handsome Lord beside her every minute?

Will Helen Trent regain her good name after being seen in a cocktail lounge unescorted?

What about Ma Perkins? Can she convince Dee Pemberton that she stopped in at Joe's Bar with her bowling team just to have a beer and that she wasn't looking to get picked up?

And finally, what will Ann Landers say when she finds out that respectable women do go to cocktail lounges alone or with their women friends, buy their own drinks, mind their own business, and go home alone? Please, Kiddo, join the 70s. --Heavens to Betsy.

Dear Betsy: Loved your letter! Too bad nobody under 35 will know what you're talking about.

Of course there are exceptions, and you may be one, but most women who go to bars and cocktail lounges unescorted are looking for male company. This isn't to say they are looking for sex, but they ARE in search of a man to talk to. Men know this. When they see an unescorted female in a lounge, they figure she's fair game. And she usually is.

Dear Ann Landers: I have something to say to the 19-year-old girl who says men drop her when she refuses to go to bed with them. Most men, especially 19-year-olds, are not libertines.

I have no doubt she has been propositioned (hasn't everybody?), but she probably behaves like Purity Raped, which, in this day and age, is ludicrous. If a girl wants to keep a boy friend and is not interested in shacking up, she should explain that her moral scruples won't allow her to sleep with him and it has nothing to do with how desirable he is.

Most men will respect her for it. If they don't, then she hasn't lost much. Bed-hopping is not for those with fragile egos or high principles. I know because I've been there. --Dulcinella

Dear Dulci: Thanks for another testimonial. My mail reflects that more and more women are beginning to realize that what they thought was sexual freedom turned out to be "enslavement." There's no such a thing as a free lunch, girls.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get more Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Fur called for in fall fashions

By Helen Hennessy
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — From the beginning of time, so they say, cavemen used furs for protection from the elements.

As we moved along in history it was the male that dominated the fur scene. Medieval English noblemen decreed that they alone would wear the expensive pelts. Well we are now in the liberated days and happily anyone can wear a bit of fur.

Nat Hirsch, the Junior Gallery Designer said, "People buy furs and clothes because it makes them feel good and not necessarily because they need them."

His use of furs in his collection is quite extensive. They run the gamut from dyed raccoon, rabbit and American lamb to red foxtail. Many of the furs are dyed to give an antique look. They are found on many of the coats and look especially glamorous in the new longer lengths. The furs give a vampish look when used on shorter wrap jackets or sweaters that are meant to be used as jackets.

Besides fur, the coat fashions focus on more details this fall. The widening of shoulders gives an illusion of slimness to the body. There's movement in the skirts that softens the silhouette. And most important, there is a choice of lengths.

Food pouches may replace cans

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — In 1980 your filet mignon will come to you direct from the grocer's shelf in a plastic food pouch. So will your mashed potatoes, peas and even your cucumber salad. They'll all be prepared in plastic and foil-laminated food pouches that will preserve food better, over a longer period of time than present methods of freezing or canning. So says John Ayers, flexible packaging technical representative of DeSoto Inc., manufacturer of the adhesive that binds the pouch layers together.

Rooker cages Birds

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outspoken Jim Rooker has a 4-6 record for baseball's struggling Pittsburgh Pirates and thinks the mark could be 12-2.

"Ive had 14 starts," the intense left-hander noted Wednesday night after disposing of the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 on a tidy three-hitter marrekd by two late Pirate errors.

"The only bad game I think I pitched was in Cincinnati when I gave up six runs," he added. "In Montreal I gave up four runs in five innings. I really think I could have won 10 games."

Rooker's frustration lay partially with the unavailing 3.07 earned run average he took into the game and partly with spotty Pirate play afield.

"Theh way we've been playing most of the year gives you an idea," he said in reference to his record.

"I don't think that it's my luck that's involved," he declared. "I think it's the club's luck. I feel I'm doing my job."

Rooker, whose last previous outing was a 3-2 loss, was perfect in the game against the Cardinals until Mike Tyson singled with one out in the third.

Then the 31-year-old former American Leaguer set down 17 in a row before Tyson was safe on Richie Hebner's error in the ninth.

Jim Dwyer beat out a bunt which Rooker was late fielding, Ted Sizemore singled to fill the bases with one out and two runs scored when Paul Popovich threw past second base on an attempted forceout.

"If we were in first place I wouldn't think about it all," Rooker said in further mention of his record.

"But we've just been playing crummy, that's all," he insisted. "We've got a lot of guys with too much talent to be playing the way we have."

One Pirate concurring with Rooker was massive Willie Stargell, who cracked his 12th home run during a four-run Pittsburgh first.

"It felt pretty good, but I haven't been doing it enough," acnowledged Stargell, whose three-run blast scuttled Cards starter Sonny Siebert, 7-5.

"I'd just like to see us get to .500," Stargell said in respect to the Pirates' 29-40 record.

The Pirates, despite their woes, are only 7½ games behind the division-leading Cards in the National League East. "Nobody's running away with it," Stargell noted. "There's still time."

Harts, IBEW breeze in BR

Harts Bread managed only one hit Wednesday night in Jr. Babe Ruth league play, but took advantage of nine walks and poor fielding by the Bank of Sikeston for a 8-4 victory. IBEW used a 13-hit barrage to subdue Home Materials 9-2.

Dewitt gained Harts lone hit while he and his teammates scored in all but the third inning on the way to their victory, opening up a 2-0 lead in the first and then charging from a 3-3 deadlock with a three run fourth inning.

Waltrip tripled for the only extra base hit of the game and Delarose had two hits to lead the Bank's four hit assault on Harts' Williams.

Pollard fashioned a two hitter, fanning five and walking five, and picked up the victory for IBEW.

Barborak had four hits in four trips to the plate to lead a 13 hit IBEW attack. Agnew and Barnett connected for extra base hits for the winners, slugging a double and triple respectively. Francis tripled for Home Materials only extra base hit.

Inn romps

Pizza Inn went on a rampage Wednesday night, scoring a 29-3 decision over Legion while Kiwanis raced past Security National Bank 9-1 in National league action.

The Inn rallied for 19 runs in the top of the fourth inning after taking a 10-6 lead into the frame.

Home runs off the bats of Jerry Laseter, Murphy and Blow sparked the Inn's victory and highlighted the 15 hit attack. Murphy and Blow also doubled and joined with Jerry Laseter and Lane with three hits apiece.

Harry Tope drilled a pair of home runs for Legion and led his teams three hit assault.

Campbell homered to offset doubles by Rodgers and Williams and led Kiwanis to their victory.

McDowell picked up the win for Kiwanis and got the backing of Harper's two hits to lead the teams five hit attack.

Funny sport

The world's funniest sport, Donkey-ball, comes to Southeast Missouri Saturday night and will feature a number of sports figures from throughout the Bootheel as the riders.

Headlining the list is TV personality Mike Shain of KFVS TV. The Little Round man has been issued a invitation, but has yet to reply. If he makes it the Donkey's will surely be in for a rugged night with such persons as Bus Carr,, well known sportscaster of KWOC radio in Poplar Bluff, and Larry Warren, Daily Standard coach of the year from Lilbourn, among those expected to ride.

The sports personalities will face a group of local citizens in the 8 p.m. contest.

A late evening downpour last year provided the fans with a lot more laughs and if the weather man doesn't provide such this weekend, the field will be good and soaked for the contest.

Also among the sports figures invited are The Daily Standard's sports staff, Ron Jaynes and Bill Harrison along with local radio personalities Dale Forbis and Merlin Hagey.

Saturday night should prove to be a real exciting one.

"FISH TALK" Mike Fansler

ALIBIS FOR FISHERMEN

To become a "complete" angler learn to offer a wide variety of reasons the fish weren't biting. First, blame something you can't control — Mother Nature! This is certain to win a sympathetic ear (at least from your wife who knows the problems you have catching fish). It was too "cold"—in July change to "hot"—in March to "windy". The barometric pressure was falling. Lake was so clear fish were easily spooked or so muddy they couldn't find the bait. Water so high fish were scattered —so low they were in deep holes. If weather was perfect, try these. You lost the only lure they were hitting, a purple Pooper Popper! Your motor conked out. Lake is overfished, needs restocking. Water skiers churned up the water so much fish were too dizzy to bite. But whatever the alibi, always shake your head in despair and tell it like you believe it yourself!

What's the law?

The case of the apologetic parent

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Little Tommy kept his home sire burning with false reports that one of his teachers, the bespectacled Mr. Jones, had been wacking him in class. When he finally reported that Mr. Jones had given him a bloody nose, that was it. His irate father loaded his pen and blasted off a strong letter to the school's principal, charging Mr. Jones with student brutality.

The principal, however, proved himself a first- class lie detector by proving that little Tommy was a second- class fibber. Unfortunately, by the time he did so, the contents of the biting letter became known to teachers and parents alike with the result that Mr. Jones sued Tommy's father for libel.

"What people think of a teacher in a community is very important," Mr. Jones pointed out in court, "and his letter was a mortal wound to my reputation."

"How can I be held responsible?" queried the perplexed parent. "Not knowing that Tommy was lying, I only did what any other father would have done under the circumstances. But, if it's any consolation, it won't happen again. Tommy and I are now on regualr spanking terms."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Tommy's apologetic father pay for damaging the teacher's reputation?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a parent is privileged to compain about his son's teacher if it is done in good faith and without malice, even though it proves to be defamatory and false.

Many people claim that they are high susceptible to poison ivy, but are totally indifferent to poison oak or poison sumac. This is probably not true, according to the National Institutes of Health, for the substance which causes the allergy to poison ivy is closely related to that which causes the allergy to Poison oak and probably that of poison sumac.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The three All-America Rose Selections Award winners this year should please fanciers of the grandiflora, hybrid tea and floribunda roses. The three champions of 1975 include one of each, Arizona, Oregold and Rose Parade.

Arizona is a bronze and copper grandiflore; Oregold, pure yellow hybrid tea, and Rose Parade, coral pink floribunda.

Arizona was originated by Ollie Weeks of Ontario, Calif., who also produced 1973 and 1974 winners, Gypsy and Perfume Delight, and shared in the development of many other AARS selections, including Royal Highness, Angel Face and Mister Lincoln.

Arizona is as colorful as the state for which it was named and it has the unusual combination of bronze and copper, with shadings of yellow, red, pink and orange. It has a light tea fragrance, well-shaped buds that open into 3½ to 4-inch blooms.

The plant grows vigorously, has good sturdy stems, each carrying several blossoms in candelabra effect, satisfactory for cutting. The new foliage is shiny, mahogany, turning dark green with leathery texture.

The AARS reports Arizona is quite free from mildew and has above average resistance to blackspot.

Oregold, an import from the German nursery of R. M. Tantau, is described as one of the rare good yellow roses. It has pointed buds of buttercup yellow that spiral open into high-centered, five-inch blooms. It has the fine form of Peace rose, with 35 to 40 petals of heavy substance. The blooms generally are borne singly on eight to 14-inch stems, providing nice, long cut flowers.

The plant grows three to four feet tall, is bushy and compact, but quite thorny.

Parents of Oregold are Picadilly X Konigin der Rosen and its ancestry includes winners Tropicana, Kordes Perfecta and Peace.

Floribunda Rose Parade is an attractive blend of light coral pink, with 2½-inch flowers shaded with peach, contrasting with the dark green foliage. It is of medium height with full-petaled blooms much of the season, excellent for mass plantings. The blooms have a rich perfume.

Benjamin Williams of Maryland was the hybridizer of Rose Parade.

The ice cream sundae, one of today's most popular ice cream desserts, was born in Evanston, Illinois because of a strange law. When a law was passed forbidding the sale of ice cream sodas on Sunday, local merchants got around it by serving ice cream with just syrup. The "sodaless soda" came to be known as a "Sunday" but then objections arose naming a dessert after the Lord's Day, so it became known as a sundae, but it, like the soda, was not banned.

Something that homemakers like more than an ice cream sundae, a Miracle Water Refiner, was born not because of any law, but to create clean, refreshing sparkling water throughout your home. The Miracle Water Refiner not only softens, it cleans, removes taste and odor such as chlorine and it filters your water as well. Once you see and enjoy the difference, you will never want to go back to ordinary tap water. Your cooked foods will taste better, your floors and walls will sparkle, your laundry will smell fresher, be softer and cleaner. Call Braswell and find out more about this modern wonder today.

World News in Brief

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Promoter Glenn W. Turner, saying he is "the only candidate who has been indicted before he runs," is campaigning for the U.S. Senate.

Turner, who has been indicted on federal mail fraud charges, is one of nine persons seeking nomination in the Democratic primary on Sept. 10. The winner will challenge Republican incumbent Edward J. Gurney.

Turner is scheduled to stand trial Aug. 5 for the second time for allegedly conspiring to defraud "persons too numerous to mention." He and seven former associates are accused of selling distributorships in Turner controlled cosmetics and motivational firms without supplying necessary merchandise. The first trial ended in a hung jury.

Turner, 39, said he would campaign against big government, special interests and deal-making politicians.

CUSHING, Maine (AP) — A farmhouse in this village made famous in paintings by Andrew Wyeth has become the center of a dispute between the artist and some local residents.

Wyeth's wife said Wednesday that "I had a hard time convincing Andrew to come back to Cushing this summer, and we're thinking of leaving permanently."

The controversy centers around the farmhouse depicted in Wyeth's "Christina's World." The structure was made into a museum for Wyeth's work in 1971. But it was closed last summer after two lawsuits and complaints from residents about the heavy tourist traffic.

The Wyeths divide their time between Cushing and Chadds Ford, Pa.

Mrs. Wyeth said the museum may be moved to another town. "Not one person gave us a vote of confidence, not one," Mrs. Wyeth said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Tennessee Ernie Ford and a dozen other performers from Opryland USA will entertain in the Soviet Union during a month-long tour this September.

The trip will be sponsored by the U. S. State Department, the state of Tennessee and Opryland, Opryland officials said Wednesday.

Opryland USA is an amusement park which opened here in 1971 and is the new location of the Grand Ole Opry House.

NEW YORK (AP) — Initially estimated at $200,000, the estate of composer Duke Ellington is to be administered by his son, Mercer K. Ellington.

Ellington,75, died May 24, leaving no will. Arrangements were made for the son, Ellington's only child, to serve as administrator in Surrogate Court here.

The late Ellington's attorney, E. Lisk Wycoff Jr., estimated the estate is worth $200,000. But he said it is expected to reach a much higher figure when royalties, coyprights, manuscripts are assayed, with other property.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney James D. St. Clair is opening President Nixon's impeachment defense before a House Judiciary Committee that has rejected his request that six witnesses be called on Nixon's behalf. The committee agreed to call two witneses suggested by St. Clair and said the others may be called if staff interviews indicate they have pertinent information to provide.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among the likely witnesses in the trial of John D. Ehrlichman and three others accused in the plumbers case are a former president of Cuba, a former Treasury secretary and two policemen from California. They were among 57 listed as likely to appear in the trial that began with jury selection Wednesday and continues today.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is down to its last 25,000 draftees, representing only about 3 per cent of its strength. Draftees will be completing their two-year service and leaving the Army at the rate of about 5,000 a month during the summer and fall. Only a few will be left in uniform after that. But the last 85 draftees will not be discharged until June, 1975.

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago Methodist congregation which wants a woman pastor has rejected its bishop's appointment of a man. A member of the Parish of the Holy Covenant explained Wednesday that the congregation "felt we had to take a stand because women are not getting support" from the Methodist Church. But United Methodist Bishop Paul A. Washburn says the congregation can't refuse the appointment because "the act is not provided for in the law of the Methodist Church."

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — The lifeguard strolled out of his station 200 yards from the cresting waves, glanced around at about 200 naked men and women and sighed, "Yep, it's going to be a fun summer." It has been that way all year for Randy Steigely, a guard for six years on the heavily used beach in this Los Angeles district. The guys and gals have been taking off their clothes and authorities have been looking the other way. Steigely, 23, said Wednesday that more than 10,000 bathers and sightseers flocked last Sunday to his stretch of Venice sands and that about 4,000 shed their clothes.

was sorted into the boxes and customers could receive mail in the late afternoon. Now mail will come into the post office only in the morning.

Pasaka explained that towns farther from the sectional center did not have such service because the mail did not arrive early enough in the afternoon. With the new system, all towns within the center are treated equally, which Pasaka feels is actually a better system.

The change has caused no reduction in the number of postal employes although the number of star route drivers, who are not considered postal employes, has been reduced by the consolidation effort.

Pasaka explained that the change was put into effect Saturday and will be permanent.

"I can't see any where that service is deteriorating in the sectional center," Pasaka said. "Why spend extra energy and extra money when you can do the same thing under this new schedule," he added.

Pasaka said the savings in miles per year will total 244,855 within the center. this will add up in a lot of savings in gasoline and other costs.

He added that so far the new system is working smoothly and all schedules are being met.

Actually, mail service has not changed, Pasaka repeated. It may seem that way because people did not fully understand how the system had worked in the past, he added.

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny was the chief greeter.

Nixon's morning flight to the Soviet capital followed a round of consultations in Brussels Wednesday with America's partners in the Atlantic Alliance and the ceremonial signing of a declaration pledging wider cooperation within the alliance.

Belgium's ruler, King Baudouin went to the Melsbroek military airport to give the President and Mrs. Nixon a red-carpet sendoff.

The Moscow summit generally was viewed as a means of maintaining the momentum of the Soviet-American detente launched by Nixon's May 1972 trip to the Soviet capital and fostered by Brezhnev's return visit to the United States last year. No major breakthroughs were expected this time.

Some agreements are reported ready for signing, such as one to expand commercial relations. But these seem mainly designed to show the continuing cooperation between the two countries.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference in Brussels Wednesday the summit would not produce a permanent ban on offen ive missiles. Until such an agreement is reached, he said, "we are prepared to continue in the arms race as long as we must."

"We will never accept a strategic disadvantage for the United States," he declared. But "we do believe we have an obligation to see how the technological explosion may be moderated."

Kissinger said the Soviet government is "nearly ready" to deploy some missiles carrying multiple warheads. He warned that the next 18 months will be critical for the negotiations to halt proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

He dismissed as "nonsense" a claim by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that the administration tried to cover up a loophole in the 1972 nuclear weapons agreement permitting the Soviet Union to put 70 more missiles aboard its submarines than had been anticipated. He said the matter "never reached my desk," and the National Security Council and other agencies "constantly maintain there was no such loophole."

Thousands greet Nixon in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of Russians standing in silence but waving Soviet and American flags greeted President Nixon in Moscow on Thursday for the start of his nuclear summit conference with Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The first session with the Communist party general secretary got under way in the Kremlin after an unexplained 90-minute delay.

Crowds estimated by newsmen to number about 10,000 had formed in groups on Nixon's route along a broad avenue from the airport to the Kremlin. But others who tried to join them in some areas were shunted down side streets by police shouting through bullhorns, "Not allowed! Not allowed!" This was believed to be an effort by officials to keep down the size of the crowds.

Unlike Nixon's previous visit to Moscow, the Soviet press had given wide publicity to the President's coming for his third round of summit talks with Brezhnev.

The crowd turnout was larger than when Nixon first came as president two years ago. Many carried tiny paper flags given them beforehand.

Nixon's first session with Brezhnev had been set for 5 p.m., 10 a.m., EDT. Newsmen on hand in the Kremlin for the session were suddenly put on a bus and driven away without explanation.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren indicated that no difficulties had arisen.

Nixon was greeted by Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at the VIP Vnukovo Airport which was decked out with Soviet and American flags. Brezhnev did not come to the airport two years ago to greet Nixon.

The President hoped his visit would produce a partial ban on underground nuclear weapons tests and a slowdown on nuclear arms development by the two superpowers.

The President, with Mrs. Nixon on his right, smiled and waved as he walked down the ramp of the blue and white presidential jet under bright, sunny skies. A crowd of about 400 persons was at the airport to greet Nixon.

Nixon first reviewed an honor guard, which hailed him with the cheer, "We wish you health." He then heard a military band play the Soviet and American national anthems. Then he and his wife shook hands with some persons in the crowd, who were waving small American and Soviet flags.

Brezhnev and Nixon smiled frequently and chatted with each other as they walked through the crowd, and Nixon waved several times to the well-wishers, who included a contingent from the American Embassy.

Nixon then watched a brief military parade, headed into the airport lounge and prepared to motor into the city.

At the President's first Moscow summit, in May 1972, the Soviets accorded Nixon a cooly correct welcome and

Local cotton growers discuss crop's future

A group of area cotton growers and representatives from Cotton Inc. exchanged views Wednesday at the Ramada Inn on what happens to investments in the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by cotton producers throughout America. The exchange took place at an agriculture forum organized by A. L. "Bud" Story of Wolf Island, area delegate to the National Cotton Council.

Dr. George A. Slater, vice president for agriculture research at Cotton Inc. headquarters in New York, was one of four company officials who spoke to the forum. He reviewed a recent experiment to eradicate the boll weevil in southern Mississippi, pointing out that producers across the nation contributed over $1 million to the experiment through Cotton Inc.

Slater said several techniques perfected in the experiment can be used by farmers now to surpress weevil populations and decrease cotton losses, including trap crops, sex-lure traps, reproduction diapause insecticide applications and early stalk destruction.

Slater also told producers that a major breakthrough has occurred in a project on the tobacco budworm.

"In a cooperative project with the United States Department of Agriculture, we have identified and isolated the sex pheromone of the budworm. Now we are working to manufacture a chemical duplication of the pheromone," Slater said.

According to Slater, if the air in cotton fields was saturated with the pheromone, or odor, it would desrupt communication between males and females, preventing mating and population growth.

Slater also discussed short season cotton systems, cotton rick compactor, automatic gin feeder and the module builder. He said all the new techniques are aimed to increase profits for growers and ginners.

"Cotton can be used effectively in the energy crisis," Slater told the group.

He said protein extracted from cotton seed may be ground into flour and used as a meat extender or in combination with wheat flour in baked products.

"Gin trash from one bale of cotton can be used as fuel to dry one and one half bales," according to Slater.

David Cox, vice president for economic research and development at Raleigh, N.C., explained the company's stategy of treating cotton as an agro-industrial product, not a farm commodity. He said growers should be more concerned with profit than price.

Cox explained profit as "the highest price a producer can get under stable market conditions of supply and demand."

"Our objective has been to push fiber through the mills and, with effective advertising and merchandising programs, establish consumer pull," Cox said.

Donald S. Kleckner, vice president for marketing services, told the group, "If we want to keep cotton competitive in the marketplaces of the world, we must grow."

Kleckner pointed out that one manufacturer of synthetic fibers spends 10 times as much on research as Cotton Inc.

He said a handful of synthetic fiber makers have ruled the marketplace in recent years.

Kleckner distributed samples of a 60 per cent cotton, 40 per cent polyester fabric which was to be introduced Wednesday night to a group of clothing manufacturers and members of the press in New York City. The fabric will appear on the retail market next February and should help change cotton's position in the fabric market, according to Kleckner.

Brian W. Jones of Cotton Inc.'s research center in Raleigh reported that researchers have developed a flame retardant for cotton apparel that will pass government standards.

Bob Matthews of Sikeston initiated discussion between company officials and the cotton producers. He accused the officials of "poor communication to the growers and ginners."

The producers decided a more direct educational approach should be taken by the company to keep them informed.

Diamond ring reported missing

Velma Parrish, 220 N. Prairie St., told police Wednesday a diamond ring either had been stolen from her home or lost sometime within the last two weeks.

She said the ring was worth $175.

A battery was reported stolen from a truck parked at Dan McCoy Seed Co. on Frisco Street between 9 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The battery was valued at $40.

End could be near for traditional 4th

This may be the last Fourth of July with a big bang, the last chance for those who love loud noises to explode their whiz bangs, rat chasers and lady fingers.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission will soon hold public hearings on firecrackers, then probably ban them and establish new safety standards for other fireworks, such as sparklers, Roman candles and sky rockets.

The commission has previously banned the sale of firecrackers to the public. The ban was scheduled to go into effect July 12. But intensive lobbying by the industry resulted in a lifting of the ban for one more Fourth.

While fireworks are still legal in the state, their sale and use is illegal in Sikeston. However, anyone who wants fireworks should have no trouble finding them, as several fireworks stands are located just outside the city limits. The only fireworks not legal in Missouri are cherry bombs, M 80's and booby trap burglar alarms.

The only legal fireworks in Sikeston, according to Police Chief Leon Culp, are those used in supervised displays.

Anyone caught with fireworks will be prosecuted, Culp said, with juveniles being sent to juvenile court and adults to city court.

Paula Gilliland, Route Two, is spending her first, and possibly last, year selling fireworks in a tent on Highway 62 East.

"If people would be more careful, it (the ban) wouldn't have to happen," she said.

All the fireworks she sells have the required label stating they should be used outdoors under adult supervision.

Some people are aware of the proposed ban and seem to be stocking up, she said. One person bought $50 worth of firecrackers in one day, and the day before he bought $15 worth, she said.

Most people don't seem to be aware of the proposed ban, she added and sales have been slow since Monday when the stand opened. Business has picked up, however, as the Fourth gets closer, she said.

What does she think the Fourth would be like without firecrackers? "Not much of one, just another day," she said.

Russell De Vore operates a stand on Highway 60 on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River bridge. He recently told the Cairo, Ill., newspaper that firecrackers were not as dangerous as bicycles, roller skates or BB guns.

De Vore sells mostly to out- of- state residents who cross the river to buy their fireworks because Illinois bans the sale and use of fireworks. He says he also sells to a large number of Michigan residents.

"You can drop a fork on your foot while eating Mom's apple pie and get hurt," he said.

"The Fourth of July is just not the Fourth without fireworks," he added.

'Fireworks for sale'

Paula Gilliland, Route Two, looks over part of her selection of fireworks. This could be the last year explosive fireworks are available to the public. The federal government is proposing to ban their sale and use.

Postmaster says service unchanged

Although the number of dispatches of incoming and outgoing mail to post offices located within the Sikeston sectional center facility have been reduced, mail service has not changed, according to Don Pasaka, postmaster of the Sikeston facility.

Only the number of dispatches to other towns within the section have changed, Pasaka said, while the number of dispatches of incoming and outgoing mail to and from the Sikeston post office from outside the section remain the same.

The reason for the reduction is the energy crisis, Pasaka explained. By consolidating some star routes and discontinuing multiple trip runs to cities, much fuel and time can be saved with no decrease in the mail service most customers are receiving.

The Sikeston sectional center facility services towns in the Bootheel from Sikeston south.

Each town serviced by the sectional center facility is now receiving only one dispatch of incoming mail and one dispatch of outgoing mail daily. In the past some of these town have received more dispatches. The same mail service standards for customers have been maintained despite the reduction, Pasaka stressed.

He explained that in the past, mail left post offices more than once during the day, but did not leave the Sikeston office until 8:30 or 9 p.m., depending on which direction it was moving. Mail arriving in Sikeston during the day was accumulated and processed for the evening dispatch.

Now mail leaves for Sikeston one time, but is processed and sent out on the same shipment as in the past. Thus, Pasaka explained, there is no change in the mail service for those towns in which shipments have been reduced.

Mail going to the various post offices is also being handled on a once- a-day basis because of the energy crunch. Mail is dispatched in the morning to these areas, and the afternoon trips have been discontinued.

He explained that only a small amount of mail was normally handled on the afternoon runs in the past any way, so the effect on postal customers is not really that great.

People who will notice the change are post office boxholders in towns close to the Sikeston facility. In the past, mail received in early afternoon at these offices

Agriculture chemicals stolen

PORTAGEVILLE — A large quantity of farm chemicals valued at $8,309.42 were stolen Wednesday night in a break-in at Agrico Chemical Co. on Highway 61 North.

According to a New Madrid County sheriff's deputy, who investigated with the highway patrol, the thieves entered the metal building by cutting a hole with tin snippers.

The break-in and theft was discovered by Nelda Kimes, the manager, when she reported to work about 8 a.m. today.

Woman stabbed during robbery

WAPPAPELLO — Mrs. Dorothy Whelan, 48, is listed in satisfactory condition today at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff where she was taken after she was stabbed by a burglar early today at Venture Inn, a Route Two tavern.

The highway patrol said it received a report that a man described as tall, slender, and wearing western boots had entered an upstairs window of the tavern at 4:40 a.m. and took an undetermined amount of cash.

He then attacked Mrs. Whelan, stabbing her in the left side of the chest with an ice pick. The man is believed to have headed south on Route T but his mode of travel is unknown.

The incident is being investigated by the Butler County sheriff's department and the highway patrol.

AND NOW,
LIQUOR LIB!

Along with everything else they established in 1787, the Founding Fathers made a "common market" out of the United States. The "Commerce Clause" was intentionally inserted into the Constitution to remove trade barriers between the states, which had been one of the principal grievances of the former colonies.

Prior to Prohibition, the Supreme Court ruled that intoxicating liquor was a legitimate subject of commerce, "as much so as cabbages and candlesticks." Since the repeal of Prohibition in 1933, however, court opinion has held that the 21st Amendment (Repeal) overrides all other constitutional provisions and permits individual states complete latitude in the area of liquor control, including the right to discriminate against wine produced in another state.

The result has been a pattern of "Balkinization" in state liquor laws, especially in regard to wines.

A bill currently before Congress — H.R. 2096— would give alcoholic beverages the protection they were once guaranteed under the Constitution. The bill has been passed by a substantial majority in the House of Representatives and is now awaiting action in the Senate.

The only right that would be denied to an individual state would be the "right" to discriminate the wines of any one are in favor of the wines from any other area. It could not force a retailer, whether a state- operated store or a private licensee, to buy or to refrain from buying any wines offered for sale by suppliers, nor would it interfere with a state's adoption of local option laws.

H. R. 2096 would, in short, remove a shadow that has hovered over the legal status of alcoholic beverages for some 40 years.

A USE FOR
USED STATIONS

Old gas stations never fade away. They just die.

Abandoned stations are a growing urban blight. (They're not so pretty in the country, either, but there the landscape tends to swallow them up.)

Some 10,000 service stations went out of business in 1973, the American Petroleum Institute reports, and the gasoline crisis was just getting started then. Thousands more will probably close this year, even with improving gasoline supplies.

What to do with all these properties? Fortunately, many of them are in very advantageous locations, usually on a busy corner right across from two or three other stations.

Realtor magazine recently asked its readers to send in suggestions for new uses for gas stations. Some it received:

Dry cleaning substation, office, auto repair shop, bus terminal, monument sales, parking lot, beauty shop, small stores or shops, fast food service, open-air market, drive-in bank, laundromat, mobile homes sales, used car lot, convenience food market.

None of these ideas exactly grabs one, does it?

MAYBE IT
WAS BETTER

Forty years ago, the March, 1932, issue of Nation's Business discussed the state of the Great Depression. Reportedly, there were a few signs of a business pickup. There was no concern about inflation. The financial integrity of government was unquestioned and President Hoover reinforced the importance of this integrity when he remarked, "We cannot squander ourselves into prosperity. The people will, of course, provide against distress, but the purpose of the nation must be to restore employment by economic recovery."

Even in this bleak period, Nation's Business points out, there were success stories. It told of a thriving variety chain store organization whose chairman observed that in the previous two depression years his firm ad increased its earnings, and it also increased the number of its stores by 50 percent. A good part of the reason, he explained, was "greater consideration for the welfare of the consumers." His firm, like others in the mass distribution field, "...made a zealous effort to pass on in price reductions any savings of costs gained through volume buying or other means."

In 1932, these were the rules for recovery from depression. No one has proven that the new way of uncontrolled deficit spending, inflation and government administered prices and wages is better. The end result may be less humane in terms of economic hardship than the stern disciplines that were accepted as a matter of course in the pre- 1932 era.

NOBODY GETS ANYTHING
FOR NOTHING

The government's Price Commisstion, in establishing guidelines for utility rate regulation, conceded the immutability of a few hard facts. The new guidelines will allow "many rate increases, some of them substantial." The rate increase, the Commission chairman said, will be needed to "supply continuing adequate, safe and pollution-free services." He also warned that consumers must realize that "when you demand service you must pay for it," and "nobody gets anything for nothing." Rate increases, he indicated, must be sufficient to attract capital for needed exapnsion in the utility industry.

Whether these precepts will be adhered to remains to be seen. Undoubtedly, efforts to drive down the rates of utility companies will furnish popular ammunition for those seeking to curry favor with voters this election year. However, if consumers and voters can but keep in mind that "nobody gets anything for nothing", they should be able to discern the difference between demagoguery and truth. In the years to come, the ability to descern that difference will determine the fate of our energy-based society and of the environmental programs to which the utility industry has committed itself.

The investor-owned, publicly-regulated electric light and power industry has a record of technological advances and declining rates that, over the past half century, have made our nation the envy of the world from the energy standpoint. Electricity has been and still is about the smalles item in the family budget-- considering the manifold services it renders. The electric industry must continue to render thses services--without which the modern home or place of business would be untenable. At the same time, the industry must be permitted to earn the money required to meet its obligations to the power consuming public and to millions of American investors.

NEW BANDITS OF THE OLD WEST

There's a not more hustling than rustling going in the modern West,'podner.

The hustler wouldn't dream os stealing somebody's steer; he'd never knock you down on the street and lift your wallet. But each year he talks thousands of naive/ greedy/soft- hearted (or headed) people out of millions of their hardearned dollars by selling them subdivided lot in the middle of nowhere, along with a dream of making a nice buck when the land is developed "in a few years."

In "The Land Hustler," a recent series of articles distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn., author Anthony Wolff noted that the federal Office of Interstate Land Sales Regulation (OILSR), in order to protect consumers from deceptive salesmen, now requires developers to provide buyers with a property report describing the land.

Unfortunately, while it does give some relevant information, "with the way most subdivision lots are sold under pressure by salesmen trained in sleight-of-mouth, the report is nxt to useless," says Wolfff.

It is a forbidding document dealing with encumbrances, eeasements and other technical matters difficult to understand. And though the OILSR points out that "this report is not a recommendation or endorsement of the offering," it may actually lend respectability to the fast-talking salesman, who can quite truthfully say that he is regulated by the government.

The way things are now is bad enough, but at least the land in question remains ecologically undisturbed. There's another way in which the government, in an attempt to insure that the land promoters live up the their promises, may be working against the best interests of the public.

Within eight years after offering property in a subdivision for sale, the seller must provide access to the subdivision by road and also rough in the subdivision streets by bulldozer.

Not only is the latter requirement relatively simple and inexpensive, it will great selling point to use with future "investors." "Look," the hustler can say, "We're already putting in the streets."

Thousands of years from now archeologists probably will puzzle over these strange markings in the middle of arid areas. What earthly reason, they will wonder, did the ancients have for making them? Could they possibly have been landing strips for gods from outer space?

JOBS AND TECHNOLOGY

The direct relationship between high technology and American jobs and economic well-bing is strikingly demonstrated in a news bureau release from a foreign airline. The airline has placed a several million dollar order with a U.S. radio company for "... a tele-communications computer network to integrate major portions of the airline's worldwide communications systems." The U.S. electronics firm is based in Texas. The components of the system it is providing to the foreign airline will be installed in Copenhagen, Aslo and Stockholm.

It has been said repeatedly that high technology as exemplified in the U.S. space program is fundamental to the ability of the U.S. to maintain a position of leadership in important international trade areas. The fact that a major overseas airline finds it is "good business" to rely on a U.S. built telecommunications computer network for "... expansion requirements well into the 1980's." is a concrete manifestation of why the U.S. must maintain a leadership role in high technology.

WEAKENING THE
FREE PRESS

An excellent example of the inherent inequity of government controls over the marketplace can be seen in the publishing business. Magazine and newspaper publishers are subject to Phase II guidelines but not the Postal Service which is free to raise postage rates to any level it deems necessary. In the second-class category, postal rates are slated to increase about 150 percent over five years. Third-class postal rate increases are following a similar trend. The net result of all this is that there is likely to be a gradual drying up of the flow of news and information upon which the public depends to arrive at fair and resonable conclusions on important issues of the day.

If publications can be put out of business through postal rate increases, the question of censorship of the press becomes academic. There will be very little press to censor and the written word as an element of the right of free speech will steadily diminish in importance as insolvency thins the ranks of America's thousands of daily and weekly newpapers as well as the nations magazines.

SCANDALS
IN GOVERNMENT

Scandals continue to be the order of the day in Washington as well as in some capitals overseas. For exactly two years, U.S. citizens have been reading about Watergate and related events and wondering how and when it will all end. The entire business should be kept in perspective. The scandals will be cleared up and the guilty punished. Whatever may be wrong in Washington, the system will purge itself and the system shall survive. The system is stronger than men. This has been proved many times.

It is not the purpose here to try to fix blame on individuals but rather to point out that the system of checks and balances is fully at work. It may seem that the three major components of the federal government work slowly at times, but like the mills of God, they grind surely. The judiciary is bringing into the dock those suspected of crimes and sentences are being meted out upon conviction. The House of Representatives continues its work in the impeachment field. While he obviously is working under a heavy load, the President continues to set a quick pace in foreign affairs.

All of this points up the wisdom of those who wrote the Constitution and the amendments. That document is as valid today as it was when it was written. Advances in science and all fields of human endeavor do not change its expressed formula for good government. HLH

WASHINGTON -- Since transcripts are in season I offer one from which no expletives are deleted. At one point (tapes available) the speaker says:

"In my mind he is guilty as hell. Let's go on with the impeachment and get rid of this bastard."

The reference is to Dick Nixon. The speaker is one of the nation's low- profiled, but nonetheless powerful labor chiefs, 60- year- old Emil Mazey, second in command of the giant United Auto Workers (UAW). Scene: the virtually unreported UAW 24th constitutional convention in Los Angeles early this month.

Later Mazey, the 1,750 million- member union's Secretary Treasurer, was asked to retract. He said he would if he could substitute the letters "s.o.b."

Mazey is tough. His references to President Nixon are mild compared with his torrid bon mots reserved for AFL-CIO President George Meany. But what's fascinating about "Emil" (few call him Mr. Mazey) is his avowed Norman Thomas- type militant socialism which hasn't prevented him from skillfully building the UAW into a union with the nation's if not the world's, greatest cache of capitalist dollars.

There's intense significance in this on the national and international political and industrial fronts. With no great labor battles facing it, the UAW may well pile up almost half a billion dollars in fixed assets and cash in banks (instant cash -- certificates and bonds) by the time it meets in convention again in mid- 1977.

Built into it are moneys for political action; for Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers; for other unions' strikers needing immediate cash. The UAW contributed $100,000 to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Farah boycott drive. Chavez has been getting $10,000 a week and told the convention delegates that "without that money we'd be dead today."

And right off, one delegate handed him eight checks for $10,000 each.

Yet the auto union itself was practically bankrupt some three years ago. It had spent $160 million striking General Motors. It was $80 million in debt. But black ink was beautiful for Mazey at the convention.

He reported the UAW now was worth $144.5 million -- mostly in liquid assets. Some $12.3 million was in cash. That was as of April 30. So the figure is higher today.

Of the total figure, the UAW strike fund now runs higher than $90 million. All of it is invested. It keeps piling up though the union appears to be spending about $12 million a month in benefits for local strikes. The going relief rate for a family is $40 a week.

Even at 60, Emil Mazey is a veteran of the early sitdown wars of the '30s. He was the first to sign a union contract with Ford. Back in 1941. And he was the first, I do believe, to sign the first Cost of Living escalator clause in the industry -- with General Motors.

No insinuations meant here that it was a one- man show. But he was there during the sit-ins. He unleashed the earliest flying squads. He was first with a lot of firsts. With him were the three Reuther brothers. But Walter and Roy have passed away. And the surviving Victor is writing a book and trying to build a Socialist bloc inside the Democratic party.

So to "Emil" has gone the flaming torch -- and the development of more firsts. There appears to be a new one in the creation of something called the Free World Dept. The convention set it up as a regular section of the huge union's infrastructure. It used to be the Free World Fund -- which was financed by the interest on the multi- million- dollar strike fund.

Now the Department will move more solidly on the international front. I see this as the beginning of actual and not just rhetorical international solidarity with the militant and Socialist automotive and metal workers' unions abroad.

"Why did we establish the Free World Fund?" Mazey asked and then answered himself. "We are living in a period of history where we have multinational corporations such as General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, General Electric, International Harvester, Caterpillar, and numerous other companies, and it is important that we have a relationship with the balance of the labor movement in other countries whose members are working for the same corporations that the membership of our union is working for. It is important that we assist them financially to build strong unions ..."

This would help auto unions in their drive for higher wages in other nations. Thus the work becomes a regular function under the new Free World Dept. Times change. Men's psyches and intellectual conditioned reflexes rarely do. So it can be expected that Mazey and the men in the UAW's high command are thinking in terms of global action, worldwide strikes.

It's intriguing to note that among the guests were the leaders of the German, Japanese and Republic of South Africa auto unions.

So I thought I wouldn't let this transcript go by.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Allies Fear Summit

WASHINGTON — On his way to Moscow, President Nixon stopped off in Brussels to sign a NATO charter and to smile for the cameras. But behind the show of cordiality, our NATO friends are secretly worried that the President will give more than he will gain at the Moscow summit meeting.

This nagging concern appears in confidential draft reports prepared for the North Atlantic Assembly, which gathered in Washington earlier this month.

The reports reveal that some NATO leaders believe the President has already signed away the Western military advantage. The result "could give the Soviet Union tremendous superiority in numbers of warheads and total 'throw- weight,' " warns one report.

NATO leaders are frankly suspicious of detente. "Detente in Soviet eyes," states another report, "is clearly to achieve recognition by the West of the political situation in Eastern Europe and to secure for the East as much economic and technological benefit as can be gained."

Unfortunately, adds the report, the political softening has been accompanied by a military tightening throughout the Soviet bloc, "Hence the price of detente in the political sphere," the report warns, "is increased readiness and vigilance in the military sphere."

A report on "Atlantic Political Problems" takes blunt notice of the "domestic problems" besetting President Nixon. These, according to the report, "threaten to severely handicap his ... authority."

Declares the confidential document: "Most people would now acknowledge that above all, the President needs a major foreign policy initiative to counter the domestic issues that threaten to engulf him.

"This in turn increases the suspicion of his critics that he will seek a major agreement with the Soviet Union that will have more to do with domestic prestige than the longterm foreign policy interests of the country."

In one report, the latest U. S. doctrine that "nuclear attack would be met by whatever scale of launch the circumstances demanded" is described as a "dangerous development."

This permits "a theoretical approach to nuclear weapons which is out of touch with political reality," the document charges. "It implies the possibility of waging limited nuclear war and the expression of such a possibility is a regressive step."

Not only do NATO leaders look with apprehension on the edge which President Nixon has already given the Soviet Union in missile numbers and payload, but the NATO partners are also concerned about the balance of troops and equipment in Europe.

The Soviet satellites, according to one report, could unleash a force of 925,000 men, 15,500 tanks and 2,800 aircraft "with very little warning." As a defense, the NATO nations have only 770,000 men, 6,00 tanks and 2,700 aircraft.

So despite appearances, our European allies aren't united behind the President as he sits down to bargain with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

MISUSED MILLIONS: The major airlines have stuffed $30 million, collected from passengers to combat hijacking, into their corporate coffers.

The rip-off has been known to federal regulators for a year. But only after goading by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., and a few others has the government stopped the airlines from misusing the antihijacking funds.

The Civil Aeronautics Boards, however, has done nothing to recover the $30 million from the airlines. Here's how the air passengers have been taken, with the connivance of the CAB which is supposed to protect them:

At the height of the hijackings in 1972, the government ordered airports and airlines to take special security precautions. The costs were supposed to be met by socking the passengers 59 cents per ticket.

A 1973 audit, however, showed that the average airline spent only 35 cents per ticket on the new security set-up. The remaining 24 cents were merely added to the profits. At nearly a quarter a ticket, the extra revenue quickly mounted up to $30 million.

The CAB's negligence, however, has been matched by the Federal Aviation Administration's diligence. Although FAA head Alexander Butterfield has admitted in a frank letter to Murphy that "the state of the art has not provided us with metal detectors that are 100 per cent efficient," not a single passenger screened with the metal detectors has committed a hijacking since January 1973.

The FAA also revealed a number of unpublicized incidents where air security held firm:

-- On Aug. 18, 1973, for example, a 16-year-old with 241 rounds of ammunition and an M-1 carbine came to Dulles airport outside Washington with plans to hijack a plane and to demand $300,000 in ransom. Authorities caught him before he could go through with it.

-- On June 4, 1973, a man with a rifle walked into the Portland, Ore., airport and said he was broke, wanted to charge his ticket and would shoot anyone who stopped him. A courageous policeman grabbed the rifle which went off but didn't kill anyone.

As quickly as air security men come up with antihijack and antibomb solutions, the terrorists develop new techniques, as evidenced by classified Justice Department papers.

They tell of interception of passengers with ingenious shotgun-shell devices for detonating bombs, and a homemade bomb made to look like artists' canvasses in which the only solid element that might show up on a metal dector or X-ray are a small battery, a bit of wire and a tiny blasting cap.

Footnote: The airlines point out that they, too, played a prominent role in cutting down on hijacks. As to the $30 million, air industry spokesmen say the original surcharge of 59 cents was, after all, okayed by the CAB. It proved high because of unexpected increases in the number of tickets sold, the spokesmen say.

DINNER
IN PARIS

PARIS — The last time I was in Paris, six years ago, I wrote a column titled "Paris on $500 a Day." The thrust of the piece was that it was still possible to get by in the French capital on $500 if you passed up lunch. My French friends, as well as Americans living in France, thought the article was very funny. But they aren't laughing any more.

When it comes to inflation, the United States is "Mary Poppins" and France is "Deep Throat."

But if you don't worry about prices, you can still have a marvelous time in Paris. What you have to do is forget everything and just decide to live for the moment.

I did this the first night I arrived in town. My wife and I went to a small bistro that boasted two stars in the Guide Michelin.

When the waiter gave us the menu, I thought he made a mistake.

"I beg your pardon, monsieur," I said. "But I believe you have made an error. You gave me the Bank of France's financial report for the month of May."

"No, monsieur, that is the carte pour dinner."

My wife, who always gets nervous when she sees melon selling for more than $15 a portion, whispered to me, "Let's get out of here."

"Don't be silly. We don't get to Paris very often. Let's enjoy it." I studied the menu carefully. "Now we have our choice. We can have the white asparagus or send Joel to college in the fall."

She said: "You mean to say that white asparagus costs as much as Joel's tuition?"

"Yes," I replied, "but they're the large white ones with Hollandaise sauce. You can only get them in the spring."

"But," my wife, always the practical one, said, "Joel had his heart set on going to college."

"Look, Joel can go to school any time. But how often do we come to France and have a chance to order white asparagus? I know if we explain it to him he'll understand."

There were so many dishes to choose from after the first course that I couldn't make up my mind.

Finally I said to my wife, "Remember that house we were going to buy in Martha's Vineyard?"

"The one overlooking the ocean?"

"That's the one." I said. "Let's have the lobster instead."

"You mean you'd rather have lobster than own a house on Martha's Vinyard?"

"But this lobster is cooked in a special cream sauce of chef. It could be years before we have a lobster like this again. We have to think of our old age."

"I don't know," my wife said. "I had my heart set on that house."

"Well, I have my heart set on lobster and, since they're both the same price, I think our stomachs should come first."

The waiter handed me the wine card.

"There's a very nice Pouilly Fuisse," I said.

"Can we afford it?" my wife asked.

"We can if we sell the car when we get back home."

"I need a car," she protested.

"All right," I said. "We'll order an inexpensive Sancerre and cancel the orthodonist's work on Connie's teeth."

My wife was becoming agitated. "If it's costing this much for dinner, how are we going to pay our hotel bill?"

"Will you stop worrying? What do you think the World Bank if for?"

Rolla nurse elected to board

Mrs. Audrey Roberts, R. N. of Rolla, was elected to a three-year term of the Missouri Heart Association Board of Directors at the 25th Annual Meeting June 14, at the Ramada Inn in Columbia.

Serving as Phelps County Heart Fund Chairman intermittently for the past eight years, Mrs. Roberts has helped boost the county's fund raising tally from almost zero to a 1973 total of $3,055. She is Coordinator for Practical Nursing at Waynesville Vocational School and has been Public Health Nurse in Phelps County for a number of years. Mrs. Roberts initiated the county's Heart Sound Screening Program and has led it for two years. She was responsible for Phelps County owning its own PhonoCardioScan machine.

Senator says election reform discriminatory

JEFFERSON CITY — An initiative petition proposal on election reform, being circulated by a group calling itself Missourians for Honest Elections, contains a provision which will make it virtually impossible for any self- employed person to safely run for political office, Sen. Richard M. Webster of Webb City, has charged in a press release mailed from his office here.

Webster said the campaign reform petition is "very similar to legislation which I proposed during the last General Assembly. Although I support the legislation and the proposal generally, it is not possible for the people, when voting on an initiative petition to propose or adopt amendments." For that reason, Webster charged that, if enacted, the petition will place hardships upon the government structure.

Under the proposal, a candidate is defined as an individual who seeks nomination or election to public office, the 32nd district senator said. He added that elsewhere in the proposed law, a public office is defined as any elective office, including such positions as school board, county offices, city council and boards of trustees of special districts, as well as statewide elective offices and positions in the Missouri Legislature.

The initiative petition proposal, Webster noted, states that each candidate shall set forth "a specific listing of the source, by name and address of any gifts, salaries, fees or other income, which for a 12- month period preceding the filing date individually or in the aggregate exceeds $500, which has been paid on behalf of or for services rendered by the candidate to any sole proprietorship, partnership or corporation in which the candidate or candidate's spouse holds an interest of 10 per cent or more."

Webster said the language was designed to require lawyers who became candidates to disclose the names of principal clients. But, he charged, the proposal "goes a good deal further."

He explained that a farmer who sold a brood cow with a calf at side would have to list the name of the purchaser together with the price of the cow and calf and the amount which was paid. The same thing would pertain to any other agricultural commodities, Webster stated.

The senator charged that the same general restrictions would require a real estate man to publish all commissions he had received from the sale of houses and a doctor to publish all fees received from a patient.

He added that a grocery store proprietor could not be a candidate for office under the proposal unless he obtained the name and address of each of his customers. If they purchased more than $500 worth of groceries during the year, their names would have to be published at the time the grocer filed for a city, county or state office.

"The most interesting situation would exist in the case of a psychiatrist who might seek some non- paying public office as a matter of public service," Webster stated. "If he was willing to offer himself for election as a member of a city council, school board or board of trustees, it would be necessary for him to list the names of all persons to whom he had administered psychiatric treatment."

"It becomes apparent," Webster noted, "that a merchant, real estate man, an insurance broker, a doctor, dentist or any other person who is engaged in the process of making a living, will face a severe hardship and a genuine ethical problem, if he seeks public office. This is the case even if that public office pays no salary and is considered strictly a public service."

Webster said that the problem with the initiative petition exists in all matters which it hopes to submit for a vote of the people. The public will see a one paragraph explanation of the proposal which is being sold as an election reform measure, the senator said. If approved, he added, a massive piece of legislation will be adopted which "repeals 20 or our present statutes and enacts 20 new ones.

"The entire bill consists of eight pages of the finest of fine print single spaced," Webster charged. "Unfortunately not one out of 1,000 people who are being asked to sign the petitions will have an opportunity to read the entire proposal."

Webster concluded by charging that the petition was drafted hurriedly after the close of the legislative session. "Most of the bad laws which find their way into the statutes of our state are the result of hurriedly drafted legislation. The proposal contained in the initiative petition is no exception," Webster said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Four major choral works by Mozart and Haydn will highlight Lincoln Center's eighth Mostly Mozart Festival, which will be extended to five weeks for the first time this summer.

Sponsored again this year by the Herman Goldman Foundation, the Mostly Mozart Festival will present 30 concerts nightly except Sundays at Avery Fisher Hall from July 22 through Aug. 24.

There will also be 10 special preconcert recitals open to ticket holders at no extra charge.

The music of Mozart will dominate the program as always but works by Bach, Haydn and Schubert will also be heard.

Firemen called to weed fire

Firemen were called to a weed fire in a field along Malcolm Street at 8:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Firemen said the fire apparently was started either by a match or by fireworks.

Only a small area of the field burned.

The Death-Watch Beetle gets its name from the supposition that its clicking sound presaged a death!

Ann Landers

Professional says funeral arrangements up to surviving

Dear Ann Landers: I am a funeral director who disagrees with "Edith in Nebraska." First of all, embalming, which she calleds "barbaric," is for sanitation purposes as well as for temporary preservation. Second, the viewing of the deceased especially for members of the family, serves a vital psychological need and helps them accept the finality of death. Finally, the funeral services is for the living, not the dead. I believe the music, sermon and all decisions connected with the funeral should be made by those who are making the arrangements, and not by the one who has passed on.

The individual's wishes and preferences can, of course, be discussed with the family before death occurs, but if the family disagrees, the wishes of those left behind should take precedence, since they are the ones who are affected. --A Professional Opinion.

Dear P.O.: I hate to dispute "a Professional," but in MY opinion each of us should have the right to decide what we want done with our remains. It's the last thing a family can do for a loved one.

Dear Ann Landers: Can Our Gal Sunday behave herself in that little mining town in Colorado without England's richest, most handsome Lord beside her every minute?

Will Helen Trent regain her good name after being seen in a cocktail lounge unescorted?

What about Ma Perkins? Can she convince Dee Pemberton that she stopped in at Joe's Bar with her bowling team just to have a beer and that she wasn't looking to get picked up?

And finally, what will Ann Landers say when she finds out that respectable women do go to cocktail lounges alone or with their women friends, buy their own drinks, mind their own business, and go home alone? Please, Kiddo, join the 70s. --Heavens to Betsy.

Dear Betsy: Loved your letter! Too bad nobody under 35 will know what you're talking about.

Of course there are exceptions, and you may be one, but most women who go to bars and cocktail lounges unescorted are looking for male company. This isn't to say they are looking for sex, but they ARE in search of a man to talk to. Men know this. When they see an unescorted female in a lounge, they figure she's fair game. And she usually is.

Dear Ann Landers: I have something to say to the 19-year-old girl who says men drop her when she refuses to go to bed with them. Most men, especially 19-year-olds, are not libertines.

I have no doubt she has been propositioned (hasn't everybody?), but she probably behaves like Purity Raped, which, in this day and age, is ludicrous. If a girl wants to keep a boy friend and is not interested in shacking up, she should explain that her moral scruples won't allow her to sleep with him and it has nothing to do with how desirable he is.

Most men will respect her for it. If they don't, then she hasn't lost much. Bed- hopping is not for those with fragile egos or high principles. I know because I've been there. --Dulcinella

Dear Dulci: Thanks for another testimonial. My mail reflects that more and more women are beginning to realize that what they thought was sexual freedom turned out to be "enslavement." There's no such a thing as a free lunch, girls.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get more Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Fur called for in fall fashions

By Helen Hennessy
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — From the beginning of time, so they say, cavemen used furs for protection from the elements.

As we moved along in history it was the male that dominated the fur scene. Medieval English noblemen decreed that they alone would wear the expensive pelts. Well we are now in the liberated days and happily anyone can wear a bit of fur.

Nat Hirsch, the Junior Gallery Designer said, "People buy furs and clothes because it makes them feel good and not necessarily because they need them."

And there's nothing more pleasing than the touch of fur in Harsch's fall collection. Furs are used with softer plush fabrics. They're all part of the easy, feminine look of clothes today.

His use of furs in his collection is quite extensive. They run the gamut from dyed raccoon, rabbit and American lamb to red foxtail. Many of the furs are dyed to give an antique look. They are found on many of the coats and look especially glamorous in the new longer lengths. The furs give a vampish look when used on shorter wrap jackets or sweaters that are meant to be used as jackets.

Besides fur, the coat fashions focus on more details this fall. The widening of shoulders gives an illusion of slimness to the body. There's movement in the skirts that softens the silhouette. And most important, there is a choice of lengths.

Golf club has new member

Faye Griffin was welcomed Tuesday morning as a new member of Sikeston Golf Association when the club met for breakfast and a round of golf at Sikeston Country Club. Three guests also were present.

Brownie Urban and Doris Stepp tied for championship class winner, Evelyn Howington and Shirley Kegley for first place in Class A, Margaret Baber won in Class B and Esther Largent won in Class C play. Faye Griffin won nine-hole competition.

Food pouches may replace cans

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — In 1980 your filet mignon will come to you direct from the grocer's shelf in a plastic food pouch. So will your mashed potatoes, peas and even your cucumber salad. They'll all be prepared in plastic and foil-laminated food pouches that will preserve food better, over a longer period of time than present methods of freezing or canning. So says John Ayers, flexible packaging technical representative of DeSoto Inc., manufacturer of the adhesive that binds the pouch layers together.

Rooker cages Birds

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outspoken Jim Rooker has a 4-6 record for baseball's struggling Pittsburgh Pirates and thinks the mark could be 12-2.

"Ive had 14 starts," the intense left-hander noted Wednesday night after disposing of the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 on a tidy three-hitter marrekd by two late Pirate errors.

"The only bad game I think I pitched was in Cincinnati when I gave up six runs," he added. "In Montreal I gave up four runs in five innings. I really think I could have won 10 games."

Rooker's frustration lay partially with the unavailing 3.07 earned run average he took into the game and partly with spotty Pirate play afield.

"Theh way we've been playing most of the year gives you an idea," he said in reference to his record.

"I don't think that it's my luck that's involved," he declared. "I think it's the club's luck. I feel I'm doing my job."

Rooker, whose last previous outing was a 3-2 loss, was perfect in the game against the Cardinals until Mike Tyson singled with one out in the third.

Then the 31-year-old former American Leaguer set down 17 in a row before Tyson was safe on Richie Hebner's error in the ninth.

Jim Dwyer beat out a bunt which Rooker was late fielding, Ted Sizemore singled to fill the bases with one out and two runs scored when Paul Popovich threw past second base on an attempted forceout.

"If we were in first place I wouldn't think about it all," Rooker said in further mention of his record.

"But we've just been playing crummy, that's all," he insisted. "We've got a lot of guys with too much talent to be playing the way we have."

One Pirate concurring with Rooker was massive Willie Stargell, who cracked his 12th home run during a four-run Pittsburgh first.

"It felt pretty good, but I haven't been doing it enough," acnowledged Stargell, whose three-run blast scuttled Cards starter Sonny Siebert, 7-5.

"I'd just like to see us get to .500," Stargell said in respect to the Pirates' 29-40 record.

The Pirates, despite their woes, are only 7½ games behind the division-leading Cards in the National League East. "Nobody's running away with it," Stargell noted. "There's still time."

Harts, IBEW breeze in BR

Harts Bread managed only one hit Wednesday night in Jr. Babe Ruth league play, but took advantage of nine walks and poor fielding by the Bank of Sikeston for a 8-4 victory. IBEW used a 13-hit barrage to subdue Home Materials 9-2.

Dewitt gained Harts lone hit while he and his teammates scored in all but the third inning on the way to their victory, opening up a 2-0 lead in the first and then charging from a 3-3 deadlock with a three run fourth inning.

Waltrip tripled for the only extra base hit of the game and Delarose had two hits to lead the Bank's four hit assault on Harts' Williams.

Pollard fashioned a two hitter, fanning five and walking five, and picked up the victory for IBEW.

Barborak had four hits in four trips to the plate to lead a 13 hit IBEW attack. Agnew and Barnett connected for extra base hits for the winners, slugging a double and triple respectively. Francis tripled for Home Materials only extra base hit.

Inn romps

Pizza Inn went on a rampage Wednesday night, scoring a 29-3 decision over Legion while Kiwanis raced past Security National Bank 9-1 in National league action.

The Inn rallied for 19 runs in the top of the fourth inning after taking a 10-6 lead into the frame.

Home runs off the bats of Jerry Laseter, Murphy and Blow sparked the Inn's victory and highlighted the 15 hit attack. Murphy and Blow also doubled and joined with Jerry Laseter and Lane with three hits apiece.

Harry Tope drilled a pair of home runs for Legion and led his teams three hit assault.

Campbell homered to offset doubles by Rodgers and Williams and led Kiwanis to their victory.

McDowell picked up the win for Kiwanis and got the backing of Harper's two hits to lead the teams five hit attack.

Funny sport

The world's funniest sport, Donkey-ball, comes to Southeast Missouri Saturday night and will feature a number of sports figures from throughout the Bootheel as the riders.

Headlining the list is TV personality Mike Shain of KFVS TV. The Little Round man has been issued a invitation, but has yet to reply. If he makes it the Donkey's will surely be in for a rugged night with such persons as Bus Carr,, well known sportscaster of KWOC radio in Poplar Bluff, and Larry Warren, Daily Standard coach of the year from Lilbourn, among those expected to ride.

The sports personalities will face a group of local citizens in the 8 p.m. contest.

A late evening downpour last year provided the fans with a lot more laughs and if the weather man doesn't provide such this weekend, the field will be good and soaked for the contest.

Also among the sports figures invited are The Daily Standard's sports staff, Ron Jaynes and Bill Harrison along with local radio personalities Dale Forbis and Merlin Hagey.

Saturday night should prove to be a real exciting one.

"FISH TALK"
Mike Fansler

ALIBIS FOR FISHERMEN

To become a "complete" angler learn to offer a wide variety of reasons the fish weren't biting. First, blame something you can't control — Mother Nature! This is certain to win a sympathetic ear (at least from your wife who knows the problems you have catching fish). It was too "cold"—in July change to "hot"—in March to "windy". The barometric pressure was falling. Lake was so clear fish were easily spooked or so muddy they couldn't find the bait. Water so high fish were scattered —so low they were in deep holes. If weather was perfect, try these. You lost the only lure they were hitting, a purple Pooper Popper! Your motor conked out. Lake is overfished, needs restocking. Water skiers churned up the water so much fish were too dizzy to bite. But whatever the alibi, always shake your head in despair and tell it like you believe it yourself!

Hitters rule Musial league

Collins Construction and the Sikeston Standard used a solid hitting attack to subdue their opponents in Musial Little League play Wednesday night.

The Standard got hits from everyone in the lineup and pounded out 31 in all in their 15-5 romp of Flower basket. Collins Construction has 24 hits in its 21-3 romp of the bank of Sikeston.

Mark Moore doubled and triples and has four hits to pace the Standard's big offensive attack. Edwards, Steward and Lambert doubled while Baker tripled for the winners.

Bloemer picked up the win for the Standard, allowing doubles by Howard and McClellan and a triple by Ferrell in the basket's 15 hit barrage.

B. Stinnett and Harper had four hits apiece to lead Collins to their easy victory. Stinnett also took the victory with a five hit performance.

What's the law?

The case of the apologetic parent

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Little Tommy kept his home sire burning with false reports that one of his teachers, the bespectacled Mr. Jones, had been wacking him in class. When he finally reported that Mr. Jones had given him a bloody nose, that was it. His irate father loaded his pen and blasted off a strong letter to the school's principal, charging Mr. Jones with student brutality.

The principal, however, proved himself a first- class lie detector by proving that little Tommy was a second- class fibber. Unfortunately, by the time he did so, the contents of the biting letter became known to teachers and parents alike with the result that Mr. Jones sued Tommy's father for libel.

"What people think of a teacher in a community is very important," Mr. Jones pointed out in court, "and his letter was a mortal wound to my reputation."

"How can I be held responsible?" queried the perplexed parent. "Not knowing that Tommy was lying, I only did what any other father would have done under the circumstances. But, if it's any consolation, it won't happen again. Tommy and I are now on regualr spanking terms."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Tommy's apologetic father pay for damaging the teacher's reputation?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a parent is privileged to compain about his son's teacher if it is done in good faith and without malice, even though it proves to be defamatory and false.

"HEALTH TIPS"
Many people claim that they are high susceptible to poison ivy, but are totally indifferent to poison oak or poison sumac. This is probably not true, according to the National Institutes of Health, for the substance which causes the allergy to poison ivy is closely related to that which causes the allergy to Poison oak and probably that of poison sumac.

ROSE PARADE

The three All-America Rose Selections Award winners this year should please fanciers of the grandiflora, hybrid tea and floribunda roses. The three champions of 1975 include one of each, Arizona, Oregold and Rose Parade.

Arizona is a bronze and copper grandiflore; Oregold, pure yellow hybrid tea, and Rose Parade, coral pink floribunda.

Arizona was originated by Ollie Weeks of Ontario, Calif., who also produced 1973 and 1974 winners, Gypsy and Perfume Delight, and shared in the development of many other AARS selections, including Royal Highness, Angel Face and Mister Lincoln.

Arizona is as colorful as the state for which it was named and it has the unusual combination of bronze and copper, with shadings of yellow, red, pink and orange. It has a light tea fragrance, well-shaped buds that open into 3½ to 4-inch blooms.

The plant grows vigorously, has good sturdy stems, each carrying several blossoms in candelabra effect, satisfactory for cutting. The new foliage is shiny, mahogany, turning dark green with leathery texture.

The AARS reports Arizona is quite free from mildew and has above average resistance to blackspot.

Oregold, an import from the German nursery of R. M. Tantau, is described as one of the rare good yellow roses. It has pointed buds of buttercup yellow that spiral open into high-centered, five-inch blooms. It has the fine form of Peace rose, with 35 to 40 petals of heavy substance. The blooms generally are borne singly on eight to 14-inch stems, providing nice, long cut flowers.

The plant grows three to four feet tall, is bushy and compact, but quite thorny.

Parents of Oregold are Picadilly X Konigin der Rosen and its ancestry includes winners Tropicana, Kordes Perfecta and Peace.

Floribunda Rose Parade is an attractive blend of light coral pink, with 2½-inch flowers shaded with peach, contrasting with the dark green foliage. It is of medium height with full-petaled blooms much of the season, excellent for mass plantings. The blooms have a rich perfume.

Benjamin Williams of Maryland was the hybridizer of Rose Parade.

The ice cream sundae, one of today's most popular ice cream desserts, was born in Evanston, Illinois because of a strange law. When a law was passed forbidding the sale of ice cream sodas on Sunday, local merchants got around it by serving ice cream with just syrup. The "sodaless soda" came to be known as a "Sunday" but then objections arose naming a dessert after the Lord's Day, so it became known as a sundae, but it, like the soda, was not banned.

Something that homemakers like more than an ice cream sundae, a Miracle Water Refiner, was born not because of any law, but to create clean, refreshing sparkling water throughout your home. The Miracle Water Refiner not only softens, it cleans, removes taste and odor such as chlorine and it filters your water as well. Once you see and enjoy the difference, you will never want to go back to ordinary tap water. Your cooked foods will taste better, your floors and walls will sparkle, your laundry will smell fresher, be softer and cleaner. Call Braswell and find out more about this modern wonder today.

World News in Brief

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Promoter Glenn W. Turner, saying he is "the only candidate who has been indicted before he runs," is campaigning for the U.S. Senate.

Turner, who has been indicted on federal mail fraud charges, is one of nine persons seeking nomination in the Democratic primary on Sept. 10. The winner will challenge Republican incumbent Edward J. Gurney.

Turner is scheduled to stand trial Aug. 5 for the second time for allegedly conspiring to defraud "persons too numerous to mention." He and seven former associates are accused of selling distributorships in Turner controlled cosmetics and motivational firms without supplying necessary merchandise. The first trial ended in a hung jury.

Turner, 39, said he would campaign against big government, special interests and deal-making politicians.

CUSHING, Maine (AP) — A farmhouse in this village made famous in paintings by Andrew Wyeth has become the center of a dispute between the artist and some local residents.

Wyeth's wife said Wednesday that "I had a hard time convincing Andrew to come back to Cushing this summer, and we're thinking of leaving permanently."

The controversy centers around the farmhouse depicted in Wyeth's "Christina's World." The structure was made into a museum for Wyeth's work in 1971. But it was closed last summer after two lawsuits and complaints from residents about the heavy tourist traffic.

The Wyeths divide their time between Cushing and Chadds Ford, Pa.

Mrs. Wyeth said the museum may be moved to another town. "Not one person gave us a vote of confidence, not one," Mrs. Wyeth said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Tennessee Ernie Ford and a dozen other performers from Opryland USA will entertain in the Soviet Union during a month-long tour this September.

The trip will be sponsored by the U. S. State Department, the state of Tennessee and Opryland, Opryland officials said Wednesday.

Opryland USA is an amusement park which opened here in 1971 and is the new location of the Grand Ole Opry House.

NEW YORK (AP) — Initially estimated at $200,000, the estate of composer Duke Ellington is to be administered by his son, Mercer K. Ellington.

Ellington,75, died May 24, leaving no will. Arrangements were made for the son, Ellington's only child, to serve as administrator in Surrogate Court here.

The late Ellington's attorney, E. Lisk Wycoff Jr., estimated the estate is worth $200,000. But he said it is expected to reach a much higher figure when royalties, coyprights, manuscripts are assayed, with other property.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney James D. St. Clair is opening President Nixon's impeachment defense before a House Judiciary Committee that has rejected his request that six witnesses be called on Nixon's behalf. The committee agreed to call two witneses suggested by St. Clair and said the others may be called if staff interviews indicate they have pertinent information to provide.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among the likely witnesses in the trial of John D. Ehrlichman and three others accused in the plumbers case are a former president of Cuba, a former Treasury secretary and two policemen from California. They were among 57 listed as likely to appear in the trial that began with jury selection Wednesday and continues today.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is down to its last 25,000 draftees, representing only about 3 per cent of its strength. Draftees will be completing their two-year service and leaving the Army at the rate of about 5,000 a month during the summer and fall. Only a few will be left in uniform after that. But the last 85 draftees will not be discharged until June, 1975.

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago Methodist congregation which wants a woman pastor has rejected its bishop's appointment of a man. A member of the Parish of the Holy Covenant explained Wednesday that the congregation "felt we had to take a stand because women are not getting support" from the Methodist Church. But United Methodist Bishop Paul A. Washburn says the congregation can't refuse the appointment because "the act is not provided for in the law of the Methodist Church."

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — The lifeguard strolled out of his station 200 yards from the cresting waves, glanced around at about 200 naked men and women and sighed, "Yep, it's going to be a fun summer." It has been that way all year for Randy Steigely, a guard for six years on the heavily used beach in this Los Angeles district. The guys and gals have been taking off their clothes and authorities have been looking the other way. Steigely, 23, said Wednesday that more than 10,000 bathers and sightseers flocked last Sunday to his stretch of Venice sands and that about 4,000 shed their clothes.

was sorted into the boxes and customers could receive mail in the late afternoon. Now mail will come into the post office only in the morning.

Pasaka explained that towns farther from the sectional center did not have such service because the mail did not arrive early enough in the afternoon. With the new system, all towns within the center are treated equally, which Pasaka feels is actually a better system.

The change has caused no reduction in the number of postal employes although the number of star route drivers, who are not considered postal employes, has been reduced by the consolidation effort.

Pasaka explained that the change was put into effect Saturday and will be permanent.

"I can't see any where that service is deteriorating in the sectional center," Pasaka said. "Why spend extra energy and extra money when you can do the same thing under this new schedule," he added.

Pasaka said the savings in miles per year will total 244,855 within the center. this will add up in a lot of savings in gasoline and other costs.

He added that so far the new system is working smoothly and all schedules are being met.

Actually, mail service has not changed, Pasaka repeated. It may seem that way because people did not fully understand how the system had worked in the past, he added.

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny was the chief greeter.

Nixon's morning flight to the Soviet capital followed a round of consultations in Brussels Wednesday with America's partners in the Atlantic Alliance and the ceremonial signing of a declaration pledging wider cooperation within the alliance.

Belgium's ruler, King Baudouin went to the Melsbroek military airport to give the President and Mrs. Nixon a red-carpet sendoff.

The Moscow summit generally was viewed as a means of maintaining the momentum of the Soviet-American detente launched by Nixon's May 1972 trip to the Soviet capital and fostered by Brezhnev's return visit to the United States last year. No major breakthroughs were expected this time.

Some agreements are reported ready for signing, such as one to expand commercial relations. But these seem mainly designed to show the continuing cooperation between the two countries.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference in Brussels Wednesday the summit would not produce a permanent ban on offen ive missiles. Until such an agreement is reached, he said, "we are prepared to continue in the arms race as long as we must."

"We will never accept a strategic disadvantage for the United States," he declared. But "we do believe we have an obligation to see how the technological explosion may be moderated."

Kissinger said the Soviet government is "nearly ready" to deploy some missiles carrying multiple warheads. He warned that the next 18 months will be critical for the negotiations to halt proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

He dismissed as "nonsense" a claim by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that the administration tried to cover up a loophole in the 1972 nuclear weapons agreement permitting the Soviet Union to put 70 more missiles aboard its submarines than had been anticipated. He said the matter "never reached my desk," and the National Security Council and other agencies "constantly maintain there was no such loophole."
